Tunnel may not fully reopen until March 2009, says French official

MAJOR INCIDENT: Thursday's Channel Tunnel fire, attended by crews from Kent fire brigade, brought travellers to a halt. Firefighters faced flames reaching temperatures as high as 1,000°C

EXCLUSIVE

By TOM SHELDRICK & STEVE KNIGHT

DAMAGE caused by a huge fire in the Channel Tunnel could take up to six months to repair, a senior French official has revealed.

Gérard Gavory, deputy head of the Calais regional government, told Kent on Sunday the blaze, which began on Thursday and raged for about 20 hours, was "much worse" than a serious fire in 1996.

It had caused "very big damage to the structure" of the north tunnel, he said.

When asked how long it would take to repair, M. Gavory, who works for the French Ministry of the Interior, said: "It could be three, four, five, six months – I don't know."

If the tunnel does not fully re-open until March 2009, motorists and rail passengers could face months of delays following the fire, which broke out on a lorry on the shuttle service between Calais and Folkestone, at about 3pm on Thursday, and reached temperatures as high as 1,000°C.

A total of 32 drivers were evacuated along with about 18 other people who were on the shuttle at the time the blaze broke out.

It is understood that 12 people were taken to hospital suffering from the effects of smoke inhalation.

Trains were sent into the tunnel from the French side to pick up those involved. No-one was injured in the incident and no passenger trains were in the tunnel at the time.

Heavy goods vehicles began to queue between junctions eight and nine of the M20 on Thursday as police implemented phase two of Operation Stack.

It was still in place throughout Friday as firefighters extinguished the blaze and set about cooling the affected tunnel down.

While ferry companies including P&O said they would increase crossings to help cope with the extra traffic, the sheer volume of HGV drivers wishing to enter the Continent meant further delays are inevitable.

Gwyn Prosser, Labour MP for Dover and Deal, fears the damage caused to the tunnel will take some time to be assessed and repaired.

"The fire was so intense and burned for so many hours that clearly the structure of the carriage itself will be difficult to mend because of the melted metal," he said.

"There will also be possible damage to the lining of the tunnel and the electrics.

"It's made me think back to 1996, when the entire Channel Tunnel system was out of use for two months and it was not fully operational for a further four.

"My view is that the north tunnel will be out of action for longer than people are predicting, possibly for a month or more.

"It will put extra pressure on the cross-Channel ferries and mean motorists will have to put up with Operation Stack again.

"Whichever way you look at it, it's going to cause considerable disruption."

Damian Green, Tory MP for Ashford, was also concerned about the knock-on effects.

He said: "Obviously it's a huge inconvenience for everyone who regularly uses the tunnel, and Operation Stack is always very bad news.

"It's too early to tell just how bad the damage is so we'll just have to wait and hope they can resume a full service as soon as possible.

"It's a blow to both freight and passenger services, and it makes things more difficult for everyone in Kent."

Despite the concerns, Eurotunnel spokesman John Keefe said lessons had been learned from the 1996 fire.

He said: "The situation we are in is very different because at that stage Eurotunnel was just two years old.

"We were very inexperienced in managing the infrastructure, but now we have 14 years worth of experience of managing and indeed rebuilding the tunnel.

"All the skills we need are already established. It will certainly take some time for everything to be sorted out, but we are much better equipped than in 1996."

Eurostar said on Friday that it was too early to tell when they would be able to start running services again.

Up for the challenge

Chief constable makes vow to cut crime

EXCLUSIVE

By IAN PATEL
ian.patel@kosmedia.co.uk

THE county's most senior police officer has pledged to reduce crime across Kent during the next year.

Chief Constable Mike Fuller told Kent on Sunday his officers were "up for the challenge" and that they got their job satisfaction from improving public safety.

And he revealed the introduction of high-tech equipment would be key to letting his officers spend more time on the streets, rather than at a desk in a police station working their way through red tape.

In July, Home Office figures showed that between April 2007 and March 2008, the number of crimes recorded in Kent had dropped by 15,133 to 131,269 compared to the previous year.

But now Mr Fuller has pledged to build on that 10.3 per cent drop and bring offending rates down further.

He said he wanted a "step change" in the quality of policing and to improve public confidence and satisfaction with the force.

Mr Fuller explained how 10 mobile electronic fingerprint devices on trial until the end of the year as part of Operation Lantern had been "invaluable" in fighting crime.

The machines can be used to check if a suspect is already on the National Fingerprint Database, and can save officers up to three hours by avoiding a trip back to the police station to check someone's prints.

Mr Fuller said he had recently seen the machines in action alongside automatic number plate recognition systems that check if cars have MOT, road tax and insurance.

PLEDGE: Chief Constable Mike Fuller

He had seen a driver admitting having no insurance because he knew he had been trapped by the technology.

The chief constable said: "We are looking at how technology can help us improve the efficiency of our admin systems so that we have officers out on the streets."

He said he was an enthusiast for technology such as DNA, but was not interested in gimmicks, and had to be convinced that devices could have some practical use for his officers before they would be introduced.

One initiative currently being implemented is the installation of 'mobile data terminals' in all police vehicles.

The laptop machines give officers on the road access to all the information they would usually get at a police station.

Officers can receive photos of suspects, access the Police National Computer and carry out some of their admin duties without having to return to base.

Mr Fuller said the machines were secure and encrypted, and could be wiped remotely if one were ever to be lost or stolen.

His officers are "really pleased and excited about it", he said.

Mr Fuller said: "I want to bring about a step change in terms of reducing crime. We are looking at ways to get a substantial reduction.

"I spent three months at the beginning of the year talking to my officers about reducing crime and making people feel safer.

"Officers are clear they want to provide a better, first-class service – that's how they get their job satisfaction.

"It's a challenge I have put to officers and they are all up for it."

The chief constable, who has been tipped to be the next head of the Metropolitan Police, railed against the amount of time his officers lose preparing for external inspections.

He said Kent Police had undergone three inspections this year and had to produce huge amounts of information for the checks.

While he agreed the police should be inspected, he said: "We are one of the high performing police forces.

"In terms of how we are performing, it does not justify the level of scrutiny we have had.

"Public satisfaction and confidence are rising, that's a fact. Public confidence is a key challenge, it should be the proper measure."

He said the force inspected its own work, and that victims of crime were contacted to assess the performance of individual officers.

Travel firm's demise won't affect airport

ABOUT 200 Kent holidaymakers have been left stranded abroad after a travel company operating out of Manston airport went bust.

Seguro Travel Ltd, also known as Kent Escapes, ceased trading on Wednesday and immediately blamed its demise on the collapse of the Spanish airline Futura.

The news comes as a further blow to Kent International Airport which has been forced to deal with the collapse of several other operators over the last few years including EUjet in 2005.

However, chief executive Matt Clark remained confident about the airport's future.

He said: "Naturally we are very disappointed by this development as Kent Escapes has been a successful operator here at Kent where they have built a very loyal customer base over the last three years.

"It is unfortunate Kent Escapes and their passengers have suffered due to circumstances beyond their control. All other services at Kent International Airport remain unaffected and the demand for charter holidays from the airport remains strong."

In addition to the 200 Kent holidaymakers, a further 2,300 who travelled with Seguro from Prestwick airport in Scotland are also stranded abroad. More than 17,000 others who made advance bookings with the company have now been forced to make alternative arrangements. Mr Clark said those passengers abroad would not be left to suffer alone.

He said: "Seguro is ATOL (Air Travel Organisers' Licensing) bonded and protected, which means passengers will be able to obtain a refund on their unused bookings.

"Customers abroad will remain in their accommodation until alternative return flights have been arranged. Customers who have made bookings for the future will be able to claim a refund through the Civil Aviation Authority or their credit card company.

"The CAA is advising passengers not to travel to their departure airport, but to follow the ATOL claim process, which can be accessed through the CAA website."

Macclesfield-based Seguro operated package holidays and flights to Spain, the Canary Islands and Portugal.

In a statement released by the firm, directors Rachel Elliott and Richard Burke said: "Futura's collapse was totally unexpected as an airline with more than 30 planes, having a good reputation and being one of Spain's respected airlines.

"After 10 years and great support from travel agents and clients, we offer our sincere apologies and are very sad to have had to make this decision, but we were left with no alternative."

Futura, which operated 80 per cent of Seguro's flights, blamed its collapse on high fuel costs.

Cliff reveals all

Secretive star opens up for radio interview

By CHRIS MURPHY
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

POP legend Cliff Richard is to spill the beans on his private world and his romance with tennis ace Sue Barker on BBC Radio Kent.

The 67-year-old will even be taking live calls from listeners during the last in a series of shows about his life and music.

The Peter Pan of the music world recorded five shows with Kent resident Gloria Hunniford – one covering each decade of his amazing career.

And even she was astounded at the way he opened up while she taped him for seven hours of interviews, cut down to five, at the star's home in Portugal.

Hunniford said: "I have known Cliff for 40 years and for the last 20 been good friends. But I didn't know he was set to marry Sue Barker.

"He also spoke of his love for Jackie Irving, who went on to marry Adam Faith [who lived in Tudeley, Kent, until his death in 2003].

"I went down to Portugal to record it and because it was his house it meant that he was very relaxed.

"When you are in your own home talking for a long period of time, in a weird way you forget that you are doing radio.

"So we recorded seven hours, which was cut into five. Although I had known him for so long I had never heard him talk about almost getting married twice.

"I knew him around the Sue Barker period, but I had no idea he was contemplating marrying her. He talks very openly about his family and life.

"One story was about his sister Joan being embarrassed about Cliff picking her up from school in his new Rolls Royce. She made him park around the corner, and told him, 'I don't want you coming anywhere near the school'. She was very embarrassed about his new-found wealth."

An insider at the BBC said: "He really does tell it all. We were quite surprised with how open he was with Gloria. The pair are already friends and you can tell because she felt so much at ease with Sir Cliff.

RELAXED: Sir Cliff Richard talks about his life, career, and relationship with Sue Barker to friend Gloria Hunniford in a BBC Radio interview

"Everyone at the BBC is delighted with the way the series of shows has turned out."

The programmes explore his career, along with other nostalgia from half a century of music making.

The BBC said this is Cliff's only in-depth radio interview about his life since the recent publication of his book My Life, My Way.

The shows, hosted by Hunniford, who lives in Sevenoaks, will begin today, between 1-2pm.

For the fifth and final weekend, on Sunday, October 12, Sir Cliff will be live on BBC Radio Kent taking calls from fans, who will be invited to put their questions direct from noon-2pm.

He has even hinted at the chances of a reunion with Hank Marvin and the Shadows.

Sir Cliff said: "We've been talking a long time and it's looking better and better and I've got my fingers crossed.

"If this comes off it won't be until the end of 2009... and I'm convinced it will be a big event because the Shadows and I are not likely to perform again.

"If we get together, if we can make this work, Hank's got to come from Australia and we've all got to get our heads right around it… but if we can do it, I'm sure it'll be a great success.

"I want to do it desperately and no one has actually said that we shouldn't!"

Sir Cliff's love life has always been surrounded by gossip, as he has rarely been seen with a partner on his arm. The biggest love of his life was tennis star Sue Barker, but the romance eventually fizzled out.

The singer speaks openly and intimately about past relationships, including his love for the now BBC sports presenter.

He said: "I really thought this is probably my last chance and she is a fabulous girl, really a fantastic girl.

"But then in the end I had to say to myself that I don't think that our love, for me, was not the same as I would have liked it to have been and we broke up amicably."

Anniversary of the great flood

IT was 40 years ago today that the notorious Tonbridge flood struck. On September 14, 1968, water swept through the town and much of the South East.

Belongings were swept from homes and sent floating through the streets. Hever Castle was swamped by muddy water.

In 1974, a report recommended a flood storage reservoir be constructed downstream of where the Eden and Medway rivers meet.

It was another seven years before the £4 million Leigh barrier was built.

Comprising three large moveable gates, it was sited two miles upriver of Tonbridge in an effort to prevent a similar disaster.

That defence was seriously tested in October 2000 when torrential rain deluged Kent, but 1,100 homes were saved.

The barrier had been used 65 times up until the end of 2007 and has been put into action twice this year.

Murder charge

A MAN has been charged with murder after the stabbing of a student in Canterbury Road, Margate.

Ian Deadman, 45, who lives in the same road, appeared before Canterbury magistrates on Friday accused of causing the death of 25-year-old Tommy Balsom.

Two other men arrested in connection with the incident were released without charge.

Police received reports of a disturbance in the road at about 10.45pm on Monday.

A postmortem examination showed Mr Balsom died from a single stab wound.

Deadman was remanded in custody until September 29, when he will appear at Maidstone Crown Court.

KCC stalwart retires

GRAHAM Badman is retiring from Kent County Council after seven years during which he headed education and children's services.

Mr Badman became director of education and libraries in 2002 and was appointed managing director of children, families and education in April 2006.

KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter said: "Kent has benefited from Graham's strong leadership and clear strategy for education."

'Campaign has taken a chunk out of our lives'

A GREENPEACE protestor cleared of causing criminal damage to Kingsnorth power station says he would "not recommend" other activists following his example.

Tim Hewke, 48, from Ulcombe near Maidstone, admits organising the break-in on October 8 last year that resulted in other campaigners scaling a 200-metre smokestack, before painting the name of Prime Minister Gordon Brown down the side.

However, defence witnesses managed to convince a Maidstone Crown Court that the damage Hewke and his five co-defendants caused was justified in the context of the damage harm to the environment by carbon dioxide emissions from Kingsnorth.

The group was protesting against the redevelopment of the plant as a coal-burning unit.

Mr Hewke said: "There may well be lots more protests at power stations as a result of this ruling, as people will feel more confident about getting away with it.

"However, I wouldn't recommend what we did to anyone. It has taken a big chunk out of all our lives and this was not something we took lightly. It involved a lot of planning and discussions."

When asked whether he would take part in a similar operation in the future, Mr Hewke replied: "It would depend what the campaign was and what the rationale behind it was.

"But if it was something I strongly believed in then yes, I would."

The other members of the so-called Kingsnorth Six group of defendants were Ben Stewart, 34, from Lyminge, near Folkestone; Huw Williams, 41, from Nottingham; Kevin Drake, 44, from Westbury in Wiltshire; Will Rose, 29, from London and Emily Hall, 34, from New Zealand.

Among those who spoke in defence of the group during their trial were leading climate scientist Professor Jim Hansen, millionaire environmentalist Zac Goldsmith and Eskimo leader Aqqualuk Lynge.

Mr Hewke said: "When you consider the

The protestors, of which there were significantly more than the six charged, planned to paint "Gordon, bin it" on the smokestack, but were stopped by police before they could finish.

A spokesman for the power company E.ON, which owns Kingsnorth, said the firm was "extremely disappointed" by the not guilty verdict.

He added: "Our worry is that people will take this as permission to break into and damage what are key UK power stations.

"Our concern about this has been safety, and this verdict sends out completely the wrong message."

As Kent tops moving poll, message from the rest of the UK is:

Wish we were there!

By CHRIS MURPHY
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

IT WILL come as no surprise to most of the county's residents to be officially told Kent is the best place in the country to live.

That's according to a new Royal Mail report – and it's all down to our amazing coastline. Even TV chef Gordon Ramsay is rumoured to be joining the exodus to Kent's seaside towns.

The Royal Mail found UK home movers are flocking to the seaside after it analysed more than half a million address changes.

Kent beat West Sussex and Devon to the top slot. Only one county without a coastline – Wiltshire – appeared in the top 10 most desirable areas to live in the UK.

Calculated by net moves, the study of mail redirection data revealed that, between them, seaside areas attracted 25,468 new householders who travelled almost two million miles from other regions for a breath of bracing sea air. Kent tops the table with an impressive 4,661 moves into the area.

Only London and Surrey achieved higher levels, but because they also saw significant moves out, neither makes it into the top 10.

Royal Mail's home-movers barometer is compiled by data specialist the DQM Group based on 600,000 mail redirection requests from January to June, 2008.

The news comes as no surprise to Cher Read, manager of the Miles and Barr estate agency in Whitstable.

She said: "I can fully understand why so many people want to live on the Kent coast.

"We are one of the more popular areas. Peter Cushing lived here, so did Janet Street-Porter and there is even a rumour Gordon Ramsay is looking for a home here. Property prices are amazingly competitive compared with parts of London, so it's no wonder people are flocking here."

And Miles Shipside, commercial director of Rightmove.co.uk, said: "The market downturn has resulted in a greater availability of houses in coastal locations.

"Previously they got snapped up, but are now on the market for longer and owners are having to consider lower offers. The best time to find what you want is in a slower market."

Eddie Bridgeman, projects director for the British Urban Regeneration Association's Seaside Network, said: "As many coastal areas undergo regeneration and investment, the Seaside Network is encouraged to see more people choosing to make their homes in both traditional and new coastal resorts.

"As a nation of islanders, Britons have always had a strong affinity with living beside the sea. With an influx of people residing there year-round rather than taking second homes, we will witness the strengthening of these areas' economies, ensuring our coastal resorts have a sustainable future."

Colin Bradshaw, head of data strategy at the Royal Mail, said: "We have a unique insight into the movement trends in the UK.

"This allows us to identify the effect the economy has on the property market and pick out the hotspots."

Bridge jump threat arrest

A MAN accused of threatening to jump off an M20 footbridge twice in three days will appear in court on Tuesday.

James Evans, 22, from Swanley, allegedly had to be talked down from the crossing near his home town on Tuesday and Thursday, last week.

A total of about 10 hours of traffic delays was caused by the incidents, as police were forced to close both carriageways of the motorway.

Evans is charged with causing a public nuisance and is due to enter a plea when he appears before Maidstone magistrates.

Off the rails

ALL Eurostar services will be cancelled from Ashford International on Sunday, September 21.

Essential maintenance works being carried out by Network Rail mean high-speed trains will not be able to use the international platforms.

All other Eurostar services on the day between St Pancras International, Ebbsfleet International and Paris, Brussels, Lille and Disneyland Resort Paris will operate normally. Services will be back to normal the next day.

What a pane

DAMAGE estimated at £1,500 was caused when an estate agency window was smashed.

The incident took place between 2pm on Sunday, September 7, and 8.30am the following day, at Clifton & Co's office at Hartley, Longfield.

Sheps buys MPs' local at heart of Whitehall

BRITAIN'S oldest brewer, Faversham-based Shepherd Neame, has snapped up the Westminster Arms near London's Whitehall – the MPs' local – for an undisclosed sum.

Set in the capital's political heart, the iconic pub is a stone's throw from the House of Commons and even features a division bell so MPs and political journalists can dash back to the house in time for votes.

Managers Gerry and Marie Dolan, who have played host to an eclectic range of customers including Archbishop Desmond Tutu, Bob Geldolf and Prince Edward, will continue to run the pub.

"People from all over the spectrum have been customers for a long time," said Mr Dolan.

"We get a lot of famous faces in here but we treat all our customers the same and pride ourselves on serving quickly because that's what most of them are looking for."

In keeping with its historic setting close to Downing Street, Horse Guards Parade and St James's Park, the pub serves a traditional lunchtime menu of steak and kidney pudding, cottage pie and fish and chips, alongside a few more modern favourites in the Queen Anne dining room on the first floor.

Grand ball to celebrate ten years at children's hospice

Decade of 'adding life to days' at Demelza

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

A DECADE of devotion to children at Demelza House will be celebrated with a grand ball this month.

The Sittingbourne-based hospice has grown dramatically since it first opened its doors in 1998, and today lists Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe and Match of the Day presenter Gary Lineker among its many supporters.

Former X Factor finalist Ben Mills will perform at the anniversary ball, to be held at Gillingham Football Club's Priestfield Stadium on Thursday, September 25.

Head of fundraising Sue Piper said the ball would allow staff to thank Demelza's many volunteers and supporters and tell them how far the hospice had come with their help.

She added: "It's certainly an important landmark as the hospice has grown tremendously since it opened 10 years ago with a handful of staff on a shoestring budget. Now we're up to 200 staff and about 300 volunteers.

"We're really excited about the ball and we are expecting a large number of guests.

"It's a party first and foremost, so we will be playing games like pass-the-parcel, but we will also do a bit of fundraising with an auction and things like that.

"Gills chairman Paul Scally is a big supporter of ours and is allowing us to use Priestfield for free."

The seeds of Demelza House were sown in 1990 after the sudden death of Derek and Jennifer Phillips' 24-year-old daughter Demelza, who had worked at a children's hospice in Birmingham.

Her parents attended a memorial service at the hospice and were so impressed by the facilities on offer that they vowed to create their own version back home in Kent.

The Demelza House charity was started in December 1994 to raise money to build the proposed hospice in the village of Bobbing, near Sittingbourne, and four years later the dream was realised.

Drawn up by Mr Phillips, who is an architect by trade, the buildings are set on six acres and were designed to look like traditional Kent farmhouses with the addition of an oast house. Today the hospice welcomes children with life-limiting conditions from all over the county, regardless of what stage of their illness or health they have reached.

SMILES BETTER: Fran and Marianne (above), Charlie in the sensory room (left) and Matthew (below) show what Demelza means to so many children and families

The charity is also in the process of raising funds to build a second hospice in Eltham, south London, where staff hope to continue the practice of "adding life to days when days cannot be added to life".

But despite the amazing success story that is Demelza House, Mrs Piper said it was as crucial as ever that people continue to donate money.

She said: "We've gone from strength to strength but face challenging times ahead. In this economic climate fundraising is the first thing to be hit. The man in the street will not donate money if he is struggling to pay his bills. So it is essential that people continue to help us however they can. If we don't have that money, we simply can't continue. The majority of the money we raise goes directly to our care support for children and their families, rather than admin costs and that sort of thing."

Mrs Piper said a commemorative book celebrating 10 years of Demelza House was also in the works.

"People are continually amazed at how far we have come in a relatively short space of time," she said.

"Things are moving so fast and we are expanding at such a rate that it's hard to keep check of it. People remember when the hospice opened and it was seen as just a small local charity, so this anniversary is a big step for us."

Joanna backs Gurkhas' fight to stay in the UK

By CHRIS MURPHY
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

ACTRESS Joanna Lumley is leading a protest march of around 2,500 Gurkhas and their families to the High Court.

The action on Tuesday outside the Royal Courts of Justice in London, is to mark the first day of a historic legal hearing on the issue of settlement rights for the soldiers, who are recruited by the British Army from Nepal.

It is a test case brought by five veteran Gurkhas and the widow of another.

But the result will affect more than 2,000 retired Gurkhas who have been denied the right to settle in the UK.

Some 45,000 have died in action for Britain, and Gurkhas have won 13 Victoria Crosses while in the British Army.

Gurkha VC recipient, Honorary Lieutenant Tul Bahadur Pun, will be at the court and has already given evidence on behalf of the Gurkhas.

He served in Burma during World War Two with Ms Lumley's father, Major James Rutherford Lumley. He was in the 6th Gurkha Rifles, part of the British Indian Army.

Joanna Lumley, who grew up in Wickhambreaux and Rolvenden, said: "My father served with the Gurkhas for 30 years. Indeed, he saw action as a Chindit in Burma with Mr Pun.

"Like so many people in Britain, I am ashamed at how successive governments have failed these magnificent and loyal soldiers.

"The overwhelming wish of the British is to allow them to live here with us if they so choose. I sincerely hope the court finds in their favour."

The fighters want settlement rights for Gurkhas who retired prior to 1997 and the case marks the latest stage in their long struggle for equal pension rights.

A large delegation of Gurkhas and their supporters will start to gather in Parliament Square on Monday and then submit a petition to the Prime Minister at Downing Street.

They will then walk to the Gurkha Memorial to pay a tribute to those who have given their life and blood for the UK.

Folkestone Liberal Democrat, Peter Carroll, has long campaigned for the Gurkhas' rights, as many of them are stationed at barracks in nearby Shorncliffe.

He said: "If we lose it is going to condemn Gurkhas to more suffering and the possibility of being deported."

Mahendra Lal Rai, general secretary of the Gurkha Army Ex-Servicemen's Organisation, said: "It is imperative we win this for the sake of so many people who could be removed from the country."

The Home Office, which deals with settlement issues, said: "The Government has tried to be as fair as possible in its treatment of Armed Forces veterans — including ex-Gurkhas.

"Gurkhas discharged before July 1, 1997, would not normally have developed strong residential ties with the UK. This was the date that the Gurkhas became a UK-based force on completion of the withdrawal from Hong Kong."

Art boosts town's profile

THE Folkestone Triennial comes to a close this with Sunday the final day for most of the exhibits dotted around the town.

From sculptures depicting the harrowing experience of the trenches in World War One to baby clothes cast in bronze and a giant mobile gull, the event's variety received widespread praise.

As well as almost all of the quality UK newspapers, it was featured across Europe and in publications in the USA and Japan.

Visitor numbers to the town were up and several of the larger exhibits will remain in place as the town continues its Creative Foundation regeneration programme.

Cllr Robert Bliss, Shepway council's leader, said: "Although the final evaluation studies of the triennial are to be undertaken shortly, it is clear that it has had a massive impact in raising the profile of the area, with consistent presence in the national and local media.

"It has been a delight to see so many visitors discovering the town for the first time, and we hope to see them again soon."

It is intended to stage the event again in 2011.

STRUGGLING Kent farmers are facing the worst harvest in living memory.

They are falling a fortnight behind schedule for gathering in the wheat and stand to lose up to an extra £20 a tonne from the price they get at market.

Heavy rain in the last two weeks has put a dampener on work as farmers watch their crops get drenched and – as an added blow – start to sprout and germinate.

To compound their problems, standing wheat heads are beginning to shed grain, days are getting shorter and the temperature is beginning to fall, making it more difficult to use combine harvesters on wet fields.

Arable farms on the Weald and in west Kent have been hit hard, while those nearer the sea in the east and around Romney Marsh have fared a little better because of the coastal effect – but not much.

By TONY PATEY
tony.patey@kosmedia.co.uk

Kent's National Farmers' Union chairman Kevin Attwood said: "It's been a struggle. It has been the worst harvest in living memory because the whole of August and the start of September were pretty dreadful."

This has resulted in wheat being much wetter, so it has to be dried at extra cost to the farmer.

Also, at all stages of the process, even if it has been gathered in, germination has started, which triggers chemical reactions, hitting quality and giving lower yields. The weather is also having a knock-on effect for next year's production.

Mr Attwood said it was just past the optimum time to sow for oil seed rape and farmers were getting frustrated because they should be starting to drill for next year's wheat but can't if crops are still standing.

He reckoned the total effect on the market price of a tonne of wheat for a farmer would be about £20 – current market prices are about £110 a tonne.

In recent years the price has been as low as half that, but has also soared to about half as much again.

Mr Attwood, who farms 6,000 acres at Doddington, said his harvesting season had now been taking place over two months when it usually takes one.

Rural affairs secretary Hilary Benn has temporarily relaxed EU rules governing work that can be done on waterlogged land to help farmers salvage crops.

Clive Apps, who farms 1,000 acres at Romney Marsh, warned that future business for farmers would be tough because they had also been hit hardest with rapidly rising overhead costs such as fertiliser and diesel.

Building for the future

Design guru Wayne to give views to visitors at Construction Expo

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

WAYNE Hemingway will explain why he feels happiness is more important than money when he speaks at Construction Expo 2008 later this month.

The show – organised by KOS Media in conjunction with the North Kent Construction Skills Project – brings together some of the country's best-known developers, planners, training providers and more for a day of information, idea-sharing and demonstrations.

Entrepreneur Hemingway now owns Hemingway Design, and lists The Bridge scheme in Dartford as one of his success stories.

He will be one of a number of guest speakers at Construction Expo, which takes place at the Historic Dockyard, Chatham, on Wednesday, September 24.

Hemingway said: "My role will be to talk about the current situation in the housing industry and how I have lots of beliefs on how it should change.

"What some firms need to realise is that when you are building new places, the first thing you think about should not be facts and figures. It should be about people and how they want to live.

"If you get that right when you're designing new homes, then the money will come later."

Other guests at the second annual expo are David Liston-Jones, chief executive of the Thames Gateway Kent Partnership, Countryside Properties chairman Alan Cherry and London 2012 Games programme manager Paul Toben, among others.

North Kent Construction Skills Project director Glenys Gilbert-Collins said: "We're delighted with the broad range of talent that is going to come along and speak at the show, as we worked hard to get the line-up.

"The first expo last year was very successful, as we had more than 100 exhibitors and more than 1,000 visitors. We're hoping that this year there will be even more."

The expo, which runs from 8am-4pm, is free for visitors.

In the main exhibition area, modern building techniques will be demonstrated including the application of clay block and engineered flooring systems.

Other interactive demonstrations featuring brickwork, carpentry, painting and decorating, and roofing will be on hand.

There will also be a chance to see a site security system that uses Bluetooth technology, and various rescue methods from construction sites.

Sittingbourne-based Denne Construction will also host its own mini-expo, aimed at schools, next to the main exhibition area.

Mrs Gilbert-Collins said: "This is essentially a 'meet the buyer' event to allow businesses to find out what is going on in the regeneration and development areas, but it will be useful for employers in other ways too.

"People talk about the credit crunch but we are also going through a talent crunch as we have a skills shortage.

"When we come out of this downturn we are going to be in the same situation or worse, so this expo will also encourage companies to find out what needs to be done."

Construction Expo 2008 will conclude with a champagne reception and guided tour of the Rochester Riverside development, on board the refurbished Kingswear Castle paddle steamer.

• For more information about visiting the show call Liz Hare on 01303 817172 or email liz.hare@constructionexpo.co.uk. For fast-track entry visit the website www.constructionexpo.co.uk.

Big Bang breakfast is a blast

SCIENTISTS invited Kent pupils to watch the world's biggest scientific experiment – recreating the Big Bang, writes Tom Sheldrick.

Ten youngsters from Simon Langton Boys' Grammar in Canterbury watched via a live video-link to the control room of CERN in Geneva, Switzerland on Wednesday.

The Langton was the only school invited to attend the Big Bang Breakfast at Central Hall, Westminster, on Wednesday.

A-level pupil Tom Stevenson, 17, said: "It was a privilege to be there – a great buzz."

The school sends pupils to CERN every year as part of its specialist science status. Teacher Dr Becky Parker, who was awarded an MBE for services to education in June, has led the development of the Langton Star Centre. Pupils have been developing a cosmic ray detector satellite.

CERN successfully started the large hadron collider on Wednesday. The experiment was designed to recreate the moments shortly after the Big Bang and so answer some of science's most fundamental questions.

'Wretched end' to cruise for stranded passengers

EXCLUSIVE

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

ELDERLY holidaymakers were held up at Dover docks when a local transport provider went bust.

All Destinations was supposed to have provided a fleet of cars to pick up hundreds of passengers aboard the Saga Ruby cruise liner on Wednesday morning, but the firm had collapsed the day before.

Staff at Folkestone-based Saga Holidays scrambled to find taxi companies across the county that could help, but many elderly holidaymakers still faced delays of more than two hours after the ship had docked.

SAGA RUBY: Delays after docking at Dover

Roger Perfitt, 63, had just returned from a 14-day cruise around the Baltic states.

He said: "Passengers were told to gather in the ballroom at 8am the morning we arrived and shortly after the captain came on the public address and read out a statement from head office. It said All Destinations had collapsed and there would be delays.

"It said all those who needed pick-ups would get them because Saga had worked through the night on an emergency plan.

"But it wasn't wonderful. We left the boat at 10.30am and I didn't get home until 3pm."

Mr Perfitt said many of the taxi drivers had difficulty finding their allocated passengers, and that some groups shared vehicles because it was not clear who they were supposed to be driven home by.

He added: "I saw some old people sitting on kerbs looking really tired and the couple I shared a car with fell asleep almost as soon as they got in. It was a wretched end to a great holiday."

Paul Green, head of communications for Saga Holidays, admitted there were lessons to be learned, but said the firm did the best it could at such short notice.

"We called in 70 people to work until 11pm to contact taxi firms and sort this out. It was a real team effort because we wanted to make sure our customers were looked after.

"When All Destinations went bust we had no idea what drivers they had called or if they had consulted anyone at all.

"We had an inkling something was wrong when some of the drivers, who work independently, told us they had not been paid.

"All the invoices we received from the firm were paid on time, so it is not acceptable that the drivers did not receive their money."

Mr Green said Saga was in the process of setting up its own in-house chauffeur service.

The All Destinations website was still running when KOS Media went to press, but its phone number was "temporarily out of order".

A sign in the window of its Dover offices reads 'Ceased operating'.

Cultural Olympiad weekend

TOWNS across Kent are gearing up for the launch of the Cultural Olympiad, as the build-up to the London Olympics begins.

Open Weekend, from Friday to Sunday, September 26-28, will see hundreds of cultural events taking place across the UK.

Kent's attractions range from folk storytelling in Faversham to a giant chess competition in Folkestone.

Dover will lead the county's cultural celebrations in its bid to be the entry point for the Olympic torch in 2012.

Light Up Dover will see a spectacular pyrotechnics display over the harbour, culminating in a celebration of fire and the torch.

The Festival of Light parade in Gravesend will include musicians, as well as more than 200 schoolchildren.

Residents are being invited to show their old home movies in Margate as part of Screen South's Hidden Treasures project.

Until 1948, arts competitions were held as part of the Olympic Games. These have since been replaced by a Cultural Olympiad.

Tomas captures park and pride

A KENT man was named regional winner in a competition to take pictures of local parks.

Tomas Herodes' photograph of Dunorlan Park in Tunbridge Wells won the South East section of the Postcards from the Park contest.

The snap, entitled Sunday Morning, impressed judges including photographer Mike McCartney, the brother of Beatle Sir Paul; and Amateur Photographer magazine editor Damien Demolder.

Postcards from the Park was launched in May with Lottery backing and support from charity GreenSpace. The aim was to encourage people to capture what they love about their local parks.

Mr Herodes said: "I'm delighted. I visit Dunorlan Park almost every day as I walk to pick up my partner from the café.

"I'm an avid photographer and in February the light of the sunrise was so breathtaking I couldn't resist taking pictures.

"This shot is part of a series I took and it was the spectacular light that inspired me to enter this photograph."

Mr McCartney said: "Tomas Herodes' photo is a wonderful shot which not only illustrates the high standard this year but also why so many people love their local parks."

Rail boss's easy ride on public platform

MEDWAY commuters have nothing bad to say about their train services – at least that appears to be the case after a rail chief turned up at a station expecting a grilling from passengers, writes Tom Sheldrick.

Managing director of Southeastern trains Charles Horton, accompanied by Gillingham MP Paul Clark, was braced for a mauling from passengers after arranging a public forum – but nobody wanted to quiz them.

The session, at Gillingham station on Tuesday morning, was abandoned because not a single commuter wanted to take part. The duo were forced to walk along the platforms trying to talk to passengers.

Station manager Caroline Wilson said: "It's unfortunate, but it was a bit too busy to get to talk to many people".

Mr Clark said the lack of complaints indicated a general satisfaction with rail services. "The number of complaints I get about Southeastern is very small," he said.

Mr Horton could have been forgiven for expecting a rougher ride after recent announcements about fare hikes.

Kent passengers will have to pay higher increases than London travellers, as Southeastern is allowed to raise its fares by the Retail Price Index plus three per cent in Kent, while prices are checked at RPI plus one per cent in the capital.

Mr Horton said: "I appreciate people don't like paying more, but as we improve punctuality and reliability they feel they are getting better value for money. The customers' priority is that trains run on time and we are now at 91.1 per cent against the public performance measure."

But Keith Dyall, of campaign group Rail Future, said: "It's ludicrous. It's going to put up the cost of living and make the figures worse for everyone."

Commuters also failed to mention the dilapidated state of Gillingham station. Mr Clark said: "The whole set-up needs a major revamp," while Mrs Wilson admitted: "It's not a pretty station."

The Thames Gateway delivery plan will invest £1.5 million on improvements to the ticket hall, forecourt and access at the station, to be completed in 2009. Mr Horton said new high-speed services, due to start in December 2009, would improve rail travel for Kent passengers.

"They will open up new journey opportunities and boost capacity in the morning peak by about 17 per cent. It's the biggest timetable change in 50 years," he said.

TRIBUTE: Head of the British Army General Sir Richard Dannatt salutes the standards

Territorial Army celebrates 100 years' selfless service

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

HUNDREDS of people lined the streets of Canterbury to help celebrate 100 years of the Territorial Army.

General Sir Richard Dannatt, head of the British Army, was among those who took part in last Saturday's festivities, saluting past and present members of the TA as they marched past him in the town centre.

The procession, which ended with a service at Canterbury Cathedral, was led by the band of Kent's county regiment The Princess of Wales' Royal Regiment (PWRR).

Speaking at the service, Lord Lieutenant of Kent Allan Willett praised all those connected with the TA.

He said: "Let there be no doubt – this celebration is not of military successes or triumphalism.

"It is about the spirit of humanity across generations from Kent who have served so unselfishly, and with such quiet distinction, in the Territorial Army, our other reserves and our regular forces.

"We do not know where this golden thread of service may lead us in the future.

"However, I am confident that in the years to come this frontline county's volunteers will always continue to answer our nation's calls."

Other volunteer reservists and cadets also took part in the march, which began at 10.50am in Pound Lane before making its way through St Peter's Street and the High Street.

General Dannatt gave the salute at the junction with Butchery Lane as the procession continued via the Longmarket, Burgate and the Buttermarket.

During the cathedral service, Mr Willett said it was "heart-warming" to see the different generations that took part in the parade, including a 95-year-old Royal Engineer from Dover.

He added: "Looking around this iconic building, represented here today is not only the Territorial Army that we celebrate, but a golden thread of voluntary service and sacrifice that stretches back centuries.

"It is good to see so many of them here, shoulder-to-shoulder with Territorials past and present, and of course representatives of the regular forces led by General Dannatt, whose presence here today speaks volumes for the significance of this occasion."

Frontline

Also in attendance for the celebrations was Lance Corporal Johnson Beharry, of the PWRR, who was awarded the Victoria Cross for valour in Iraq when he twice rescued comrades despite being severely wounded and under heavy enemy fire.

Mr Willett said: "We in Kent are proud to be the frontline county and the bulwark of the defence of this nation.

"We played our frontline part in seeing off

Originally known as the Territorial Force, the TA was formed on April 1, 1908, by then war minister Richard Burdon Haldane following the reorganisation of the old Volunteer Army.

It contained 14 infantry divisions and 14 mounted yeomanry brigades, and had an overall strength of about 269,000.

Today that figure has fallen to just over 30,000.

Kent chippies compete for national title as old favourite goes back on the menu

Out of the frying pan...

By CHRIS MURPHY
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THREE chippies in Kent are in line for a chance of becoming the best in the UK after being shortlisted in an annual national contest.

Hoping to batter their rivals are Newington Fish Bar, in Ramsgate; Ossie's Fish Bar in Faversham; and Reliance Fish Bar, Gravesend.

They have just been shortlisted in the National Fish and Chip Shop of the Year competition 2008.

Ramzan Altun has been behind the counter at Ossie's Fish Bar for eight years. He said: "We were in the contest last year, but this time we are determined to win it.

"We have beaten thousands of other chip shops to get this far, now we want to go all the way to the final."

Ken Derrett, 57, has run the Newington Fish Bar for 28 years with his brother Nigel, 49.

Ken said: "We have done well in the contest a few times now, but progressing is really tough.

"You really need a brand new shop with brand new everything inside, but we will do our best to get though the next stage."

That will involve a visit from a mystery judge who will assess the shops on product quality, customer service, hygiene, staff training and approaches to sustainable sourcing. This round, which will have staff in shops around the country on tenterhooks, will provide the 19 area winners to be announced next month.

ICON: Best of traditional British grub

Then one further round of judging will determine the top 10 chip shops in Britain.

They will then progress to the grand final in London next year, hosted by celebrity chef Simon Rimmer.

Organised by Seafish, the competition recognises the quality, value and choice offered by our chippies and rewards the cream of the crop with the coveted title.

Andy Gray, project manager and competition judge at Seafish, said: "This year the competition marks its 21st anniversary. In that time the industry has gone from strength to strength, with quality and choice improving continuously.

"Fish and chip shops throughout the country are constantly raising the bar to make sure the iconic dish remains a firm favourite throughout the country.

"As customers are becoming more aware of where their food comes from, fish and chip shops are stocking alternative varieties of fish.

"Shops stepping up to the plate this year have high standards to live up to."

New figures show customers are returning to the traditional British meal, with the first rise in sales in five years.

The number of people going to fast-food restaurants rose by more than three per cent in the first quarter of 2008, compared with last year.

With nearly 276 million meals sold each year from more than 10,500 shops, fish and chips remains the nation's favourite takeaway.

Devotees can also tuck into their fish and chips knowing that they contain 36 per cent fewer calories than a chicken korma and pilau rice, and 42 per cent less fat than a doner kebab with pita and salad.

Recent studies also showed that fish and chips had the lowest salt content of all the takeaways tested.

Water complaints flooding in

steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

AN INCREASE in complaints made to two of Kent's water companies has been blamed for a rise in customer grievances nationally.

The Consumer Council for Water (CCW) says that were it not for Southern Water and South East Water, figures for the industry in 2007-08 would have dropped overall.

Anglian Water, which serves households in the east of the country, also contributed to the rise in complaints.

CCW figures released on Tuesday show that Southern Water had 48,328 complaints for the last financial year, a rise of 154.6 per cent from 2006-07.

South East Water saw a rise of 54.7 per cent to 10,400 complaints.

CCW chairman Dame Yve Buckland said: "It is very disappointing that a few companies are responsible for the overall rise in complaints.

"Without the high increases in complaints to Southern Water, Anglian Water and South East Water, figures for the industry overall would have dropped.

"It is even more disappointing that for the third year in a row, the rise in complaints has been heavily influenced by individual water companies introducing new billing systems that have gone wrong.

"Companies need to keep in mind that the changes they make do have an impact on consumers.

"Just because they cannot choose their water supplier, customers should not have to put up with sub-standard service.

"We will continue to press water and sewerage companies to raise their standards of service, provide clear benefits to consumers and place consumer priorities at the heart of future plans."

According to the CCW, the number of complaints made about Southern Water tripled because staff at the company were unable to deal with the large number of grievances about its new billing system.

However, the firm says it has since doubled the number of staff dealing with customer inquiries and is confident the number of complaints will dramatically reduce next year.

Improvement

Director of customer services Darren Bentham said: "The report from the CCW is disappointing and I would like to publicly apologise to customers.

"We are now doing much better and have recorded a significant improvement in our performance since the bedding-in problems of the new billing system were resolved.

"We are determined to build on this in the future and not only meet but exceed customers' expectations for service delivery and value for money."

South East Water said it too had ironed out problems with its billing system, and that a new customer service centre housing more than 150 staff would lead to a reduction in complaints.

Head of customer services Howard Handley said: "We have always accepted there were some initial problems with a major new billing programme which went live in early 2006.

"That, in turn, prompted a larger number of written complaints that continued into the early part of the next 2007-08 financial year.

"While clearly we did not get everything absolutely right first time for some customers, this new billing system is now firmly bedded in and, in fact, will be rolled out across the newly-merged South East Water as it offers a sound platform on which to help us develop improved customer service."

The three remaining water companies that serve Kent households all saw reductions in the number of complaints made about them to the CCW.

Thames Water was down 8.3 per cent to 52,174, Sutton and East Surrey Water was down 5.8 per cent to 357 and Folkestone and Dover Water saw a drop of 12.9 per cent to 142.

Mid Kent Water, which merged with South East Water in December 2007, saw a 10.5 per cent rise in complaints to 1,040 for the 2007-08 financial year.

Improving travelling in Kent

Your one-stop guide to information and advice on travelling

Kent County Council

Get your skates on, your walking boots or your cycling shorts to save yourself money and help Maidstone go green!

If you regularly come into Maidstone for work, shopping, or to drop the kids off at school, there's a very good chance that you've found yourself sitting in a rush hour queue – it's frustrating for you and bad news for the environment.

That's why we're asking everyone to leave their car at home on Friday 19 September and find another method of transport for In Town Without My Car Day.

The day is the finale of Maidstone Goes Green Week, which has been put together by KCC, Maidstone Town Centre Management and other partner organisations. We've put together a week of activities and information about alternative ways to travel, with the aim of changing people's travelling habits, in order to dramatically reduce congestion in the town and lower $CO_2$ emissions.

We want everyone who travels into Maidstone, whether it's for work, school or shopping to take part and find out for themselves that they could save money and make a difference to the environment at the same time.

If you're a commuter and you leave the car at home on Friday, you can enter the Maidstone Commuter Challenge by passing one of three 'finish lines' around the town, where a free mini breakfast will be waiting for you. If you find an imaginative way to travel you'll be entered into a competition to win six months health club membership or one of three bikes from Cycles UK.

Maidstone Goes Green Week starts on Monday 15 September and we'll be focussing on a different transport option each day: cycling, car sharing, walking and public transport, to help you find an alternative transport method.

Maidstone's three shopping centres; The Mall Chequers, Fremlin Walk and Royal Star Arcade are taking part by hosting events all week. These will include a free bike health check in Fremlin Walk on Monday 15 and a bus clinic in The Mall Chequers on Thursday 18 to help you plan your journeys.

There will also be the chance to win prizes by pledging to change transport methods – even for just one day – by visiting one of the shopping centres or by pledging online.

If you'll be making a short trip, what about swapping the car for walking or cycling? If you're coming from further afield, you could take the bus or train, car share, use the Park and Ride system, use a mixture of these or avoid travelling altogether by working from home. If you need a car for business during the day, joining Maidstone's Streetcar Club could be the answer with pay-as-you-go car hire.

WIN! Tickets and Champagne Lanson reception to see BLACKROCK MASTERS TENNIS

LEGEND: 'Pistol' Pete Sampras will be in action at the Royal Albert Hall

THE hugely popular BlackRock Masters Tennis tournament, now in its 12th year, is staged at the iconic venue of the Royal Albert Hall, London from December 2-7, 2008.

This year will see the exciting debut of former World Number One and 14 times Grand Slam champion, Pete Sampras.

This will be the first time Sampras has played in London since his last Wimbledon appearance in 2002.

The American star will be competing against a host of other former Champions of the game in the singles event, including John McEnroe, Goran Ivanisevic and Stefan Edberg, with more names to be announced soon.

The BlackRock Masters Tennis is the season finale to the BlackRock Tour of Champions – a year-long tour that travels the world and pits past tennis masters against each other to earn ranking points.

Eight world-class players will be split into two groups of four and will compete in a round-robin singles competition throughout the week, before the winner of each group goes on to play in the final on Sunday, December 7.

And we have a pair of tickets and hospitality up for grabs for one lucky winner.

To enter, simply answer this simple question:

Q) What date does the Blackrock Masters tennis tournament start ?

Send your entry on a postcard along with your email address (if applicable), name, address, and daytime telephone number to Blackrock Competition, KOS Media, Apple Barn, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent TN25 6SR.

No purchase necessary.

For our full terms and conditions please visit www.kentnews.co.uk or for a posted copy of the T&Cs call 01303 817073.

If you do not wish to receive any literature please write 'no literature' on your entry closing date is October 31, 2008

The lucky winners will be treated to:

- Tickets for the afternoon session on Tuesday, December 2, 2008. (The session comprises of two singles matches and a doubles match)
- A Champagne Lanson reception, including finger buffet, prior to the on-court action.

Ticket Hotline: 020 8233 5881

For the chance to win a T-shirt signed by the stars of the tournament and two tickets to the final on Sunday, December 7, log onto www.theblackrockmasters.com and enter your details and the promotional code 'KOS'.

Warning over bogus caller

POLICE are warning residents in Downswood, Maidstone, to be vigilant after a bogus caller, claiming to work for the probation service asked a homeowner for money.

The incident occurred around 2.30pm on Friday, September 5, when a man approached a female resident in Foxten Drive, and said if she bought some of the textiles he had, he would get breakfast in the morning.

He had an ID tag round his neck and was carrying a large canvas bag.

Police are issuing a warning to residents not to give money to callers, unless they can prove they are who they say.

Genuine callers will not mind you asking for a phone number to check their identity.

Cubist cat at auction in the city

RARE BEAST: Lucky Master Cat by artist Louis Wain is for sale

A RARE 'cubist cat' is about to go under the hammer at a Kent auction house, writes Michael Sims.

Canterbury Auction Galleries has already set an auction world record of £8,200 for a Louis Wain pottery cat.

The latest figure features in the autumn sale on Tuesday and is expected to sell for £4,500-£6,000.

The piece on offer is Lucky Master Cat from the early 20th century. Its octagonal head and angular body reflect the cubism movement of the time.

Curiously, the creature sports a bow tie and is smoking a cigar. It is eight-and-a-half inches tall and is thought to have been made by Max Emmanuel in 1914.

A mostly blue Wain figure was sold to a Californian buyer in Canterbury in June. It fetched £8,200.

Wain was an illustrator whose 'discovery' of felines was born out of tragedy and ended in madness.

In 1884, aged 23, he married Emily Richardson but she was soon diagnosed with cancer.

Wain spent hours making sketches of her kitten performing human activities such as reading a newspaper to amuse his ailing wife. His pictures were published by the Illustrated London News and brought Wain public acclaim.

However, he developed schizophrenia after the death of his wife, the progression of which some claim can be traced through his changing styles of work. Wain died in 1939.

The sale will also feature several items based in Kent.

These include a 17th century walnut clock owned by a Folkestone collector that could fetch up to £15,000.

A George IV mahogany dining table from a Folkestone estate is estimated at £3,000-4,000.

Viewing for the sale is this Sunday from 1-5pm; Monday from 10am-7pm; and on the morning of the sale from 8.30am. The sale starts at 10am.

Contact auctioneer Anthony Pratt on 01227 763337 or email auctions@thecanterburyauctiongalleries.com.

Farmers praised after bluetongue danger is licked

By NICK AMES
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A 90 PER cent plus take-up in vaccination against the bluetongue virus – which can be fatal to livestock – has spared the county's sheep and cattle from infection.

And the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) has praised farmers in Kent, while experts believe the worst is over.

Last year the insect-borne virus proved a headache for farmers, with quarantine zones established and lack of movement allowed for winter grazing.

But at the start of the summer a vaccination programme was introduced by Defra.

About 98 per cent of Kent farms took up the offer, with the figure for farms as a whole in excess of 90 per cent.

Animal health experts say the farmers' action prevented an outbreak of the disease – which causes sickness followed by death in its most severe form – comparable to that experienced in continental Europe where herds and flocks were devastated.

Anthony Greenleaves, vet manager of Animal Health, which is a branch of Defra, said while people still needed to be vigilant, large-scale problems had been avoided.

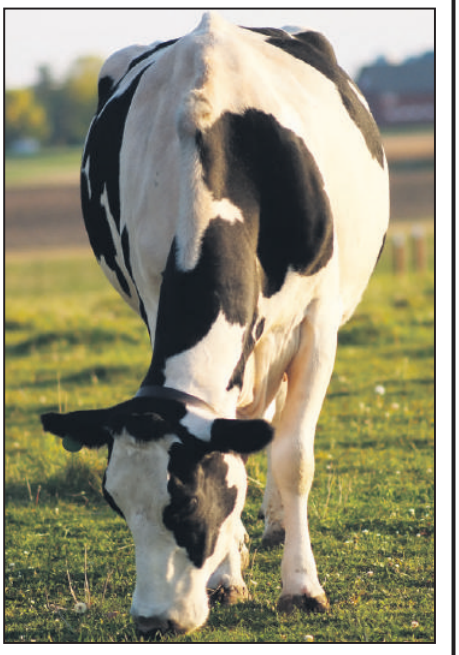
"In terms of cases within the county, we get one or two alerts a week and we check these out," he said. "But in no cases during recent weeks have they proved positive."

This is the second year the disease has been viewed as a threat to the UK farming industry. Experts feared it would be more devastating than 12 months ago, as the midges that spread it had gained a foothold and the species had adapted to British climatic conditions.

But Mr Greenleaves said: "The second season in Europe – the summer of 2007 – was the worst for farmers across the Channel. We are, in effect, a year behind them, as it spread to these shores last year.

"So it was very good to see how our farmers reacted. It has looked good so far and the programme of inoculation looks like it has done the trick.

"We do have a few cases of infected animals coming into the country from Eastern Europe so we are maintaining our level of alert. Also the vaccination programme will continue next year. But it looks like we have been spared the worst and, thanks to farmers, the threat is not as great as at first feared."



UNITED FRONT: Vaccination take-up rates of 98 per cent in Kent have kept the bluetongue virus at bay

MP's wife, former model and author will give literary lunch plenty to chew over

Scandalous insights all by the book

THE wife of Folkestone and Hythe MP and former Tory party leader Michael Howard admits she was able to do most of the research for her books on political sex and scandal "in bed", writes Chris Murphy.

Former model and now newspaper columnist Sandra Howard has seen her novel, Ursula's Story, just published in paperback.

It is a follow-up to a previous book, Glass Houses which traced the story of Victoria James, a government minister who ends up in an affair with a newspaper editor and finally marries him, shattering two families in the process.

Ursula is the other woman, and her life is examined in the second book. Mrs Howard confessed to being able to draw on her own life as a leading politician's wife to put the storyline together.

She laughed: "I can honestly say I could do quite a bit of my research in bed. I could ask my husband while I had him captive."

Four-times married Mrs Howard added: "I haven't based it on my own life. I haven't had an editor husband and the female minister is not based on anyone.

"I could do my research fairly close to home for the first book, having been married to a government minister for a long time – he spent 14 years as a minister."

Mrs Howard, 68, is giving a talk on her life as a model, political wife and writer on Tuesday, at the Tunbridge Wells International Music Festival literary lunch.

She said: "I will be talking about writing books at a reasonably mature age, the thrill of it all, and how hard it is get a book published.

"It will generally be about being a politician's wife and a model in the 1960s. It will be more on the book side than anything else."

Being well known doesn't always make it easier to be published, she said.

"It's like two sides of a coin, really. If you are attached to someone well known, or you have been a model or whatever, you can get your toe in the door of a publisher and you know they will glance at your book.

"On the flip side, you might get looked at when someone else might not, but if it doesn't stand up the critics will be harder on you. It's swings and roundabouts."

READING MATTERS: Model author Sandra Howard

The third novel, A Question of Loyalty, comes out early next year. Mrs Howard revealed it involves a young newspaper reporter who turns out to be a hero.

"It continues with the newspaper theme in that I have a young reporter who is a Muslim and it's a thriller. He is a hero because of what he succeeds in preventing happening. It's terrorism linked and political again.

"My fourth book is being conceived – I'm still trying to dream that one up," she said.

The lunch at Hotel du Vin starts with a champagne reception, followed by a two-course lunch with wine in the Abbeywell garden room. Tickets are £37.50.

Enduring legacy of American princess

By MICHAEL SIMS
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THE 50th anniversary of Gravesend's landmark statue of Princess Pocahontas will be celebrated next month.

The town's St George's Church is the final resting place of Pocahontas, who died on her way back to America in 1617 as her ship passed Gravesend.

The church will welcome seven American ancestors of the princess on the weekend of October 4-5. Members of the Bolling family can trace their ancestry to the Native American princess, who continues to attract interest nearly 400 years after her death.

The celebrations will open with a talk entitled Pocahontas – No Myths Barred, by Professor Helen Rountree, an expert on Pocahontas and the English settlers. She will be flying in from the United States.

Several events have been lined up to strengthen Gravesend's relationship with the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Alan Vincent, musical director of Gravesham Choral Society, has organised a concert where The Pocahontas Performers will combine English and American music styles. This will be followed by a meal influenced by both sides of the Atlantic.

Friendship

The Rector of Gravesend, the Rev Canon Chris Stone, hailed the event for bringing the two communities together.

He said: "It gives us a great opportunity to celebrate the enduring friendship between Gravesham and Virginia, something we value very much.

"We are expecting hundreds of visitors during the weekend and are looking forward to the visit of the Bolling family."

On the second day, the life-size statue will be commemorated in a special service at St George's Church.

Gravesend's Pocahontas landmark was unveiled in 1958 by the then Governor of Virginia, John S Battle.

It is a copy of the statue that stands in Jamestown, Virginia, where the first permanent English settlement was founded in 1607. The Rev Canon Stone visited the Virginia statue last year.

The two are identical apart from the hands, which have been polished to a shine on the Virginia statue through visitors holding her hands – the Gravesend replica is displayed high up and out of reach.

The Kent statue was the idea of the Canon Selwyn Gummer, the Rector of Gravesend in the 1950s, who wanted to mark Pocahontas' extraordinary life.

Pocahontas was the Indian wife of 17th century English colonist John Rolfe and the first of her people to be baptised as a Christian.

Together they voyaged from Virginia to England, where as a Native American she was met with great fascination and interest.

But she fell ill as they set off on the return journey and died at Gravesend. Her funeral and burial were both at St George's Church.

To obtain tickets for any of the events, telephone 01474 337600 or email info@towncentric.co.uk.

Breaking the mould

Have you ever watched The Dragon's Den where a simple but brilliant idea is presented and you sit there watching thinking "I wish I'd thought of that or could at least be part of it?"

Well, we had that same eureka moment almost two years ago, long before the current property market decline and since then we have been developing and moulding our ideas for the future into an award winning business model.

Our winning concept works even in these difficult market conditions and will have we believe as big an impact on our sector as the iPod had on the music industry.

If you would like to share in the secrets of our tried and tested formula which has set our business apart, then you'll probably already have the entrepreneurial spirit that it takes to become a business owner/partner with Miles & Barr. If you are prepared to put hard work, commitment and investment behind your ability and have the vision to see what a great opportunity this is, then you could be one of the partner's we are looking for. Whether you come from an estate agency background or not, you will need to come with an open mind and without any preconceived ideas.

We believe that the old estate agency format is dying and that once you have seen our successful formula, you to will have your own eureka moment, just like those entrepreneurs in The Dragon's Den.

If you are interested in finding out more about this life changing concept please contact Miranda Mallery on 01843 572582 or email franchise@milesandbarr.co.uk

Fine and re-test for young driver

AN 18-YEAR-OLD driver has been given a £100 fine and will have to retake his driving test after being found guilty of careless driving by Maidstone magistrates.

Henry Furness of Ringlestone Road, Harrietsham, pleaded guilty to careless driving following a crash in Leeds Road, Langley, on February 28 when he drove into the back of a stationary car. The other driver suffered whiplash injuries in the crash.

In addition to the fine and £58 costs, his licence was endorsed with six penalty points, meaning as a new driver he will need to take the driving test again before being allowed back on the road unsupervised.

Green Party anger at protest policing

THE Green Party is to ask for an inquiry into alleged heavy-handedness by police during the Kingsnorth Climate Camp protests last month.

Dr Hazel Dawe, chairman of the Kent branch, presented an emergency motion on the subject at the party's annual conference in London earlier this week.

It was passed unanimously and a letter requesting the inquiry will now be sent to the Home Secretary Jacqui Smith.

Dr Dawe said: "Ordinary Kent people on the Hoo peninsula who had never before encountered such aggressive policing were appalled.

"As chairman of Kent Green Party I am concerned at how this will affect the relationship of Kent people to their police force."

Last month, KOS Media reported how several leading politicians had condemned the "aggressive" and "provocative" policing approach at the camp, which was a protest at plans for a new coal-powered plant at the site.

They included Dr Caroline Lucas, Green MP for the South East and Norman Baker, Lib Dem shadow transport secretary.

Kent Police said officers responded directly to activity at the camp, and in particular people who were more intent on creating trouble than protesting.

The game of Calais

This week a cross-party group of MPs called for limits on immigration into Britain from non-EU countries, and said population numbers had to be controlled in the face of predictions that seven million people will have moved onto our island by 2031. Award-winning Kent photo-journalist MIKE GUNNILL travelled to Calais and offers this personal view on the problems of illegal immigration from across the Channel

HOW much longer will the game of Calais continue?

Since 1987 there has been a cat-and-mouse game of asylum seekers and French police, with the asylum seekers – or whatever we are supposed to call them now, winning every time.

Today, as before, it really begs the question, when will sensible basic measures be introduced to stop this open door into the United Kingdom?

The latest technology is supposed to operating at the French and Belgium ports. It is, however, an open secret that many immigration-scanning vehicles do not or cannot work.

There is the recent example at the port of Zeebrugge, one unit was scanning and working every day just for effect, no-one was detained or caught because the unit just didn't work.

Every time the mobile unit was moved it had be re-calibrated and a visit from a Dover-based engineer required.

Not every lorry is stopped and scanned because this would cause huge delays and start to block the motorway access roads and more important still, stop ferries sailing on schedule.

Checks do catch some people inside lorries entering the search sheds but when caught they are handed over to the French police. Where they 'process them' and quickly release them again locally. Just watch the police station opposite the City of Europe shopping centre mid-morning, constant streams of tired and disappointed men are released via the police car park to walk five kilometres back into Calais.

Seekers then wait for their next charity feeding, feel stronger, sleep and then try the very same evening the 'Calais game' again.

A teenage Afghan said this week he had tried 23 times to leave France, caught 23 times, been processed 23 times, released 23 times and was still trying. All within his three-month stay in Calais.

CAT-AND-MOUSE GAME: Asylum seekers are determined to get into the UK

In broken English he said: "I only have to be lucky once, the people searching for me have to be lucky every time. I will keep trying to get to London until I succeed. Nothing will stop me, it is my right."

The French Government could stop this daily game. When caught trying to enter the UK illegally, asylum seekers should be processed but then returned to Belgium.

All are in France illegally but very few want to stay and just use France as a transit lounge. Belgium would then deport them to Germany, as each country would pass them back wards along their previous route.

This new hard line would quickly get the message across and close the back door into southern England.

The other area of concern is, what sort of people are entering the United Kingdom?

Some are ex-doctors or students but 90 per cent of all 'seekers' are desperate young men looking not only to import themselves into the United Kingdom but their violence, customs and hatreds. I personally have been threatened with knifes, iron bars, pieces of wood, surrounded by large groups and stoned, many British lorry drivers have experienced the same.

Most of these 'transit travellers' are not good people and will stop at nothing to enter our country.

Isn't it about time, the French Government stopped either directly or indirectly helping this problem to cross the English Channel?

Huge numbers of French CRS soldiers are always on standby in Calais in case of trouble, but often they remain in their three-star hotels waiting to become useful.

When will the French and British governments stop pretending the problem is reducing? How many more British lorry drivers have to be attacked or female student journalists raped?

Will someone please close and secure this back door into the United Kingdom.

Tribute to bishop who everyone looked up to

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

A MEMORIAL stone is to be dedicated at Rochester Cathedral in memory of the town's long-serving former bishop, David Say.

Mr Say held the position for 27 years from 1961, and was also a member of the House of Lords until his retirement in 1988.

The dedication of his memorial stone will follow a Choral Evensong service at the cathedral, at 3.15pm on Saturday, September 20.

Among those attending will be Mr Say's son William, 56, who said his family was "greatly honoured" by the gesture.

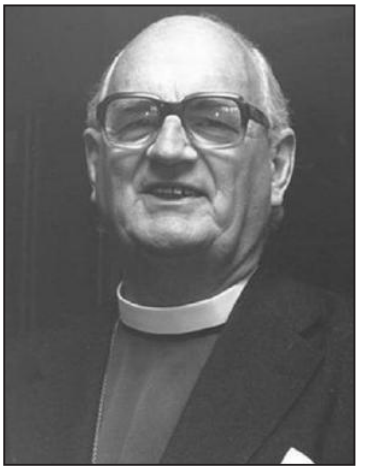
He added: "There hasn't been another memorial there for the best part of 50 years, and I'm sure my father would have been very pleased and honoured too.

"He cared very much for the people and clergy he was responsible for, and I'm sure the inscription on the stone is something he would have felt would be useful for the people to read.

"It says 'alleluia, on we go', which was his catchphrase, as such. It's a religious phrase, but it's meant to encourage people.

"It means don't be overwhelmed by the problems of today, and always look out for hope."

The future Bishop of Rochester was ordained as a deacon on December 22, 1939, and became a priest just 10 days later on New Year's Day, 1940.



DEDICATION: Former bishop, David Say

He gradually worked his way through the ranks before being made a bishop at the relatively young age of 47, and was one of the last to be allowed to continue past his 70th birthday.

For some years the keen Kent County Cricket Club supporter deputised for the Archbishop of Canterbury as chairman of the board of governors of the Church Commissioners, and also spoke in favour of church marriages for divorcees and of an Anglican-Methodist reunion in the General Synod.

He even took up the position of High Almoner to the Queen, which he kept for 18 years.

Following his death aged 91 in September, 2006, Mr Say's ashes were spread at Canterbury Cathedral along with those of his wife Irene, who had died three years earlier.

Mr Say's son said: "Physically, at 6ft 4in, my father was an impressive man and he looked the part.

"He was very much someone to look up to, in more ways than one, and was a very proficient Christian and leader. He was a man of action.

"He was also a very modest man but was never afraid to speak his mind, and he was held in great respect and affection by a great many people.

"My father gave his life to the Church and its people, and he loved Kent."

Mr Say said four candles would be laid on each corner of his father's memorial stone, to symbolise family, the diocese, public life, and friendship and recreation.

• Anyone interested in attending the memorial dedication should call Kay McDowell on 01634 810062 or email precentorsec@rochestercathedral.org.

Fairey magic restored

By STEVE KNIGHT
steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

A RARE bomber that fought in World War Two has been lovingly restored by skilled members of the Medway Aircraft Preservation Society (MAPS).

Hundreds of Fairey Battle monoplanes were shot down by German fighters during the conflict, and today just three remain.

One belongs to the RAF Museum London, but has not been seen there since it was sent for refurbishment at MAPS' Rochester Airport home almost three years ago.

More than 25,000 man hours have since been put into restoring the bomber, and it will finally return to the museum on Monday, October 20.

MAPS spokesman Robin Brooks said the Fairey Battle fleet was introduced in 1937 but suffered "grievous casualties" that saw it removed from service before the end of the war.

He added: "It was under-armed and under-powered, as it only had one engine. It had to carry quite a lot of weight and it struggled.

Corroded

"The Germans found it easy to shoot them down and unfortunately they went down in their hundreds. After Dunkirk it was mainly used for training purposes.

"The Fairey Battle we have was in quite bad condition when we received it. It was badly corroded and needed a complete refurb, which is what we have now done."

Friday the 13th was certainly an unlucky day for Flight Officer Willy Wilcox, who was flying the Fairey Battle L5343 in September, 1940, when poor weather and engine failure forced him to make an emergency landing.

He survived despite crashing the bomber into boulders on the coast of Iceland, and two days later an RAF team burned the craft after removing all salvageable materials.

The aircraft's shell remained in the same spot for the next 31 years until an expedition was mounted from RAF Leeming to recover it.

It was then restored using parts from other Fairey Battles and eventually unveiled at the RAF Museum London by F/O Wilcox in 1990.

Richard Simpson, keeper of aircraft and exhibits, said: "The aircraft originally belonged to the regional collection at RAF St Athan, when the Ministry of Defence made the decision to close it.

"This left them with only six months to finish work on it and transport it to the RAF Museum.

"They did the best job in the available time, although certain processes required more than six months to be completed.

"For example, there was not enough time to straighten the propeller. This is one of the main operations conducted by MAPS.

"We have had a long and fruitful relationship with MAPS and were confident they had the skills, ability and resources to get the job done."

Mr Brooks said many of the men who worked on the Fairey Battle were employees of the former Short Brothers factory in Rochester, and that he helped out with painting and other odd jobs.

He added: "It's important to preserve old aircraft for heritage purposes.

"The younger generation would not know what their fathers and grandfathers had flown in if we did not have them around.

"Britain doesn't really have an aviation industry any more so it's nice to keep the aeroplanes around, even if they are mostly in museums."

TRANSFORMATION: The plane has taken three years to restore, and (top) in its WWII heyday

Spitfire flypast in honour of The Few

A SPITFIRE will soar through the skies of Kent as part of an eight-minute display to commemorate the Battle of Britain.

The fighter aircraft, named the Spirit of Kent, will circle above the Kent Battle of Britain Museum, Hawkinge, at about 3pm on Sunday, September 14.

Built at the Supermarine Works in Castle Bromwich, near Birmingham, this particular Spitfire started its career with the Royal Air Force in December, 1944.

It flew with 183 (Gold Coast) Squadron and 234 (Madras Presidency) Squadron, and first took off from RAF Hawkinge in September, 1945.

The Battle of Britain is commemorated every year on September 15, which in 1940 saw the height of the conflict in the skies.

The Kent Battle of Britain Museum is open from 10am to 4pm, Tuesday to Sunday until September 30.

COMMENT

A force for good

TIPPED to be the next head of the Metropolitan Police, Kent Chief Constable Michael Fuller is one of the most respected men in his profession.

He has helped the county's force become one of the best performing in Britain and seems to be admired by his staff and the public alike.

In an interview with Kent on Sunday, he sheds light on the enormous amount of red tape his officers have to deal with.

He also reveals how much time has been wasted preparing for three separate external inspections this year alone.

Exactly why is a question even Mr Fuller does not know the answer to – and it continues to irritate him.

Never one to rest on his laurels, Mr Fuller has vowed to free up his officers' time by installing "mobile data terminals" in all police vehicles.

The laptop machines give officers access to all the information they would usually receive at the station.

Mr Fuller is confident these advances well help reduce crime in Kent, as the officers will spend less time at their desks.

Regardless of whether the number of offences drops or not, surely it would be better if the inspectors let forces like Kent's get on with the job at hand – catching criminals.

Sir Cliff tells all

BBC Radio Kent listeners are in for a treat today with the airing of the first of a series of interviews with Sir Cliff Richard.

The interviews, conducted by Kent resident Gloria Hunniford, unearth a variety of stories from the pop legend's past including how he was due to marry BBC presenter and former tennis star Sue Barker.

OPINION: Saws is a sore point

We need overseas workers to help gather in the Garden of England's harvest, argues KCC leader, Cllr PAUL CARTER

DID you know the strawberries served up at Wimbledon (forgive the pun) are from Kent? And that it is Kentish fruit in Mr Kipling's apple pies?

These and other illustrious links could be at risk because of the continuous pressure faced by our farming industry and a change in government rules affecting seasonal workers from overseas.

Many farms rely on overseas workers to bring in the harvest. We are not talking about people who want to come and settle here permanently, but short-term workers, mainly students, who need earnings to pay for their studies back home.

I have had farmers contacting me about a Home Office decision to abandon the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Scheme (Saws).

Saws started 20 years ago in response to the falling numbers of itinerant workers coming to Kent to pick crops. Under the scheme, licensed operators were able to employ workers on an approved list from non-EU countries, such as Russia, Belarus, Ukraine and Moldova.

Last year, Saws was restricted to workers from Bulgaria and Romania, with a cap on the number set at 16,250. It was previously 25,000.

These two countries joined the EU last year and, as new accession countries, residents won't enjoy the same freedom to work here until they have been in the EU for seven years.

As Saws will be scrapped in 2010, this is leaving our farming community – particularly soft and top fruit growers – with real concerns about how they are going to get their fruit picked.

Robert Mitchell runs Foxbury Farm with his brother in Stone Street, Sevenoaks, and grows 4,000 tonnes of Bramley apples a year. They rely on 120 workers employed through Saws to bring in the hand-picked harvest between mid-August and mid-October.

Robert is also chairman of Concordia, a licensed operator for Saws, which provides workers for 400 farms countrywide.

The issue of immigration is hot in the news at the moment. For the second time this year, I find myself agreeing with Frank Field MP (the first time was over the abolition of the 10p tax rate) that we need to carefully control immigration so it works in the best interests of this country.

Robert tells me Saws operators target mainly agricultural students who rely on seasonal work overseas to pay for their studies.

This means they are not trying to get into this country to stay here. Saws does seem to be a highly organised and regulated system, which counts them in and counts them out, and has worked for many years.

I asked Robert why we can't just employ people from within the EU, indeed, from within the UK.

It appears the short-term, minimum-wage, back-breaking work is making it difficult to attract workers, especially as financial conditions in their own countries improve, and worsen here.

The benefits system is an added deterrent for UK residents. The length of time it takes to get back on benefits once the seasonal work has dried up is a big disincentive.

And seasonal work is not necessarily the career choice we want for our young people who need full-time, long-term careers.

Clearly there needs to be a wide-ranging debate about the need to reform the UK benefits system, but in the meantime there is evidence that some farmers are reducing the size of their crop in advance of the changes, or giving up their farms altogether.

Something needs to be done, and fast. Either Saws needs to remain or be replaced by something similar, or we need to make this work more attractive for UK residents by removing the disincentives.

Fruit picking is just the start of the chain. There are many other industries employing UK residents that rely on our local produce from catering, retail, packaging and marketing.

And it is not just the problems of finding willing workers which is causing concern. Our farming industry has to survive under a raft of European legislation and the spiralling cost of fuel and fertiliser is making farming less and less of an attractive option.

This is particularly concerning for the county of Kent. Farming is one of the biggest industries in the county, employing more than 15,000 people a year, with a direct contribution to Kent's economy of £600 million.

Farming covers two thirds of the land area of Kent. It is vital to the future success of the county and we must do everything we can to preserve it.

Withdraw your remarks

Of course Alan Haynes (Letters, last week) has the right to express his views, abhorrent though they may be to me and no doubt many others, but he really should get his facts straight first.

Our forces are in Afghanistan legally under UN mandate – or perhaps he considers the UN illegal.

Action to remove the Taliban regime unprovoked? Has he forgotten the attacks on New York or the fact that the murderous gang of fanatics styling themselves Al Qaeda were being actively sheltered and supported there while they plotted and trained for mass murder?

As for the outrageous suggestion that this country behaves remotely like the Nazis, I suggest he brushes up on his history.

It ill behoves him to insult those very people who are defending his right to express his opinions and I hope he will have the good grace to withdraw his remarks.

E Egan, Harrietsham

What price morality?

Alan Haynes' opposition to dishonourable wars instigated by the United States and Britain echo my views.

The US, UK and other European countries boost their pension funds from manufacturing and trading munitions.

Must we condone the cluster bombing that won battles in Iraq and Afghanistan, but not hearts and minds in occupied territories?

As in 1968, the US and the West are scared to confront Russian provocation and aggression. They mollify and pander to Putin for the sake of energy supplies. Modern warfare is as destructive and twisted as our bonus and target culture.

Pakistan reaped millions in rewards for collaborating with the US. Now that power has changed hands, are the bombings of civilians a sign of US displeasure and an effort to destabilise that country?

US and European efforts to work together fail through unresolved conflicts of interest.

The cliques and marriages of convenience carry on as if personal and national advantage is all that matters. Filthy lucre is the root of commercial and corporate crime.

Do wars for oil and strategic gain matter more than lives abroad and at home?

R Grootendorst, Sidcup

The flow of information

Before I respond to Steve Knight's report (August 27), may I say how much the extended space given to letters and comment by KOS Media is appreciated.

Community issues need discussion and information and you are providing it.

In the report, county councillor Keith Ferrin is quoted as being "very dissatisfied" with proposals by water companies for rate increases, and he comments on their "poor value". But the report doesn't disclose what, if anything, Cllr Ferrin can or will do about it.

It would be helpful if the Press would take a more detailed look at the accounts of the water companies and publish information with which we can judge if we are equally dissatisfied.

For instance: are their dividends excessive? A large slice of these goes to superannuation funds in Australia via the companies which have bought our water – such are the ways of international finance.

Should the sums raised for capital investment for what Cllr Ferrin describes as "vast growth in the population" be excluded from water rates and be raised from the market? Are the financial reserves of the companies too high?

The work of reconstructing old water mains (often laid in the 19th century as municipal works) is symptomatic of much of our ageing infrastructure.

This also needs decisions as to how repairs are to be paid for, including much of the road network as well as millions of houses identified in the Barker Housing Report as having to last at least 1,200 years at the present rate of replacement.

There are no easy answers and responses such as nationalisation spring to mind, mainly because so much of the water supply was initiated by municipal enterprise, but perhaps a better step would be a co-operative of all water users.

Leslie Turner, Maidstone

Afghan venture will fail

I wouldn't be surprised if Alan Haynes' letter gets a negative reaction from many readers, particularly his comment that the war was unprovoked. However, there are some points your readers might like to note. When the US started to bomb Afghanistan, President Bush told the Afghans the attacks would go on until they handed over 9/11 suspects, namely Osama bin Laden and his associates.

The Taliban requested evidence to support this demand, but the Bush administration refused to provide any because, we later learned, they didn't have any.

The FBI 'believed' the 9/11 plot was hatched in Afghanistan but was probably implemented from the Middle East and Europe. The US also flatly refused to consider offers of extradition.

So, as far as the population of Afghanistan is concerned, the US bombing was unprovoked. The proper (and legal) response to 9/11 should have been to mount a police-type operation to hunt down bin Laden and bring him to justice before an international court.

We are now told our troops are primarily in Afghanistan for our protection, that if they were not on the frontline, we in the West would be subjected to acts of terrorism.

Our troops are not there for the benefit of the Afghan people, notwithstanding that some beneficial work is being done. The project is therefore bound to fail, as sooner or later the Afghan people will want the troops out. We should bring our troops home before the Afghans rise up and force them out.

Jim Pragnell, Otford

It's a very harsh world

One can't fault Alan Haynes for putting an honest view, but isn't he being a bit harsh when he compares British troops in Afghanistan to the Nazis?

If nothing were done in Afghanistan and that unfortunate country was left to stew in chaos, what would be the result?

Mr Haynes brushes aside strategic interests as if they don't matter. If the Old Codgers are armchair warriors, is he any better as an armchair pontificator?

Was 9/11 carried out under his beloved Geneva Convention? We live in a harsh world and can't sit back and be blown to pieces.

Arthur Treme, Canterbury

those I wrote about Gordon Brown, which Helen Jerse took exception to.

The things Mr Brown and his Government do are not altered by my "opinion" or "point of view" – I don't have that power. They are facts – and the facts are all that I wrote. I am sorry if I offended people by reminding them of the stupidity of this Government.

Many people like to believe there are different types of truth, as they find the truth too limiting.

But I am sure if they were ever the subject of a false prosecution, it would concentrate their minds to the fact there can only be one truth.

Mr Gentler is of the opinion that I have a leaning towards a certain political party. The truth is, I have no time for any politician who sells this country or its people short.

He also believes me to be intolerant. Maybe if more people were 'intolerant' there wouldn't have been an invasion of Iraq, we wouldn't have surrendered our country to the EU, post offices wouldn't be closing, the elderly wouldn't be insulted with a 25p pension increase and dying people wouldn't be refused drugs.

For tolerant, should we read apathetic?

Phil Granger, West Malling

It's food for thought

I look forward to getting my copy of your newspaper each week and find the local news very comprehensive.

I enjoy reading all of the paper and its Review supplement. However, I do find the restaurant review to be a little out of touch with the economic climate.

We enjoy treating ourselves to a meal out now and then. However, we consider it a treat to go to Harvester, with discounts before 6pm, or Brewers Fair, offering two main meals for £9 Monday to Friday, and other restaurants with similar offers.

We would love to be able to spend £50-100 on a meal, but that is out of the question these days.

May I respectfully suggest that Glenn Pearson seeks out and reviews some of these less expensive premises and give everyone a chance to try eating out?

John Winfield, By Email

Bluetongue is still here

With reference to KOS Media's article on kentnews.co.uk about bluetongue (also see today's report on page 18).

Although farmers in Kent are to be congratulated on their uptake of the vaccine, I rather think expressions of relief are somewhat premature.

The outbreak in the South East last year didn't occur until late September and as it is now considered the virus can over-winter, it is highly likely it survives in wildlife and unvaccinated livestock.

I would also remind you that a first infection is often mild and can go unnoticed, especially in sheep. Although it is a reportable disease, there are diseases with similar symptoms, so not every farmer may have suspected bluetongue and reported it.

The disease known as BTV8 is still spreading in France and another serotype, BTV1, is also spreading north from southern Europe. For more information, see www.farmtalking.com/the_farm_bluetongue.html.

Jane Barribal, www.farmtalking.com

Not to be sneezed at

May I add my experience to your recent stories drawing attention to the need for improvements in the NHS in Kent?

My Folkestone GP gave me a referral for a hernia repair and I then received an appointments request form giving me a choice of four hospitals: Buckland at Dover, Kent and Canterbury, Folkestone's Royal Victoria, and the William Harvey at Ashford.

Choose just one, it said, ring or email them for an appointment, and be sure to have your reference number and password available. My password was 'sneeze staff' – keep it safe said the form.

I chose the Royal Victoria, since it was local and had a patient-rating of Very Good.

No appointments have been brought forward, they said, but never mind, if you don't hear from us within a month, give us another ring.

And they added that I would be receiving computer-generated reminders to make an appointment from Milton Keynes (their address is Sunrise Parkway), which I should ignore.

A month later, when I rang the Royal Victoria, there were still no appointments and I was given a number which (after four transfers) turned out to be the patients' service centre at Kent and Canterbury Hospital.

Each extension demanded my date of birth and postcode, and disappointingly showed no interest in the password sneeze staff, which I had taken such pains to keep safe.

There was a wait of up to nine weeks, they told me, before I could see a consultant who would then put me in the 16-week queue for the operation.

Only after I insisted was I finally given a take-it-leave-it appointment to see a consultant at the William Harvey.

My reminder that I had expressed a preference for the Royal Victoria was treated with contempt.

"There aren't any other appointments available," I was told, with the implication that I was lucky to get an appointment anywhere in only seven weeks.

Meanwhile, the Milton Keynes computer continued to send me reminders with an appointments phone line.

When you ring, a recording tells you about their high volume of calls, and urges you to try the internet.

But if you hang on long enough, through a few more robotic messages and hackneyed classical music, you get a ringing tone answered by a clerk who is quite obviously not very busy at all.

It is important to add that once one gets to the hospital one is treated with the utmost courtesy and efficiency.

But until we can get rid of all these people with computers that often don't work, messing about with appointments and issuing documents offering choices that don't actually exist, we will never match the queueless health services in France and Germany.

How many people are there, I wonder, at Sunrise Parkway in Milton Keynes, issuing reminder letters which our local hospitals warn us are on their way but which we should ignore?

I suspect polyclinics might be the first step towards reforms that will be of little benefit to me: date of birth May 12, 1915; password: sneeze staff.

Bob is a role model

I am starting to feel a bit paranoid. What is it exactly that Kent County Council has against the people of Aldington?

The mishandling of the lorry park proposal was bad enough, but then to take away our fully functioning, respected community warden without any apparent justification – apart from doing a great job.

Bob Hughes has made a career out of serving the public. What an excellent role model for his managers at KCC.

Bring back Bob!

Let's cheer up our boys

The letter from the Old Codgers regarding sending parcels to our lads in Afghanistan must have struck a chord with many – it certainly did with me.

In spite of the rather sad, misguided response from Alan Haynes last week, I am sure many of us will send a parcel to cheer up our boys.

Could I ask you to reprint the address and give some indication of the items they would like to receive? Also perhaps a list of things they don't want. I am sure with the weight of KOS Media behind us, we can get a good flow of parcels to our lads.

They're football crazy

We have received a Canterbury council referendum asking if we are in favour of a proposed 'football hub' (presumably they mean pitches, why can't they talk English?).

The form asks if the respondent is white, black, mixed race, mixed gender and other very personal and irrelevant questions.

Have councils gone mad? Would they like to know my collar and shoe sizes, or whether I clean my teeth morning and night?

Would someone explain? What has this got to do with football?

Lions will roar back

Last weekend saw the cancellation of Sevenoaks Lions Club's horse and craft show due to the wet weather. It was not safe to go ahead due to the state of the fields.

I have attended this event with my family over many years as it is a great show.

The Lions are going to suffer a huge financial loss, but it will be the community which suffers in the long run as the club will not have the funds to spend on the needy.

Let's hope they will be able to recover some of their losses and put on another fantastic show next year.

Birds in the firing line

Monday, September 22, marks the start of Animal Aid's first National Anti-Shooting Week.

Every year in Britain, about 40 million pheasants and partridges are mass-produced like commercial poultry so they can be shot down.

This bloody and brutal end to their lives is the final insult. From birth, they are kept in cages, sheds and pens, in which disease and death are a daily feature.

Letters continue on p33

In an effort to eliminate the stress-related aggression between the birds, they are fitted with an array of devices that restrict their vision and prevent them from pecking their cage-mates.

Because of the enfeeblement that results from being intensively reared, many birds die before they can be gunned down. They perish from exposure, starvation, disease or predation or under the wheels of motor vehicles.

Many shot birds are not eaten. Even pro-shooting magazines have reported that some are buried in specially dug holes.

Killing animals for fun has no place in a civilised society. For a free anti-shooting action pack, contact Animal Aid on 01732 364546 or go to www.animalaid.org.uk.

Green guilt trip is going nowhere

Putting the blame and guilt on individuals for using their cars is what I expect from the Tories and Lib Dems mentioned in your story on Maidstone Goes Green Week (KOS Media last week).

Encouraging people to travel to work without using their car is a worthy goal, but Kent County Council has repeatedly failed to invest in alternatives to car-based travel.

The implementation of the traffic management system in Maidstone has coincided with a doubling of road fatalities, the bus services in Maidstone are infrequent enough to be non-existent and the tiny number of cycle lanes simply don't work.

How can people be expected to 'do the right thing' during Maidstone Goes Green Week, when KCC refuses to invest in the changes needed to support people?

Individual changes are vitally important to tackling climate change and the rising cost of living, but local and national government must ensure policies and infrastructure are in place to make these changes possible.

Stuart Jeffery, Green Party prospective parliamentary candidate for Maidstone and the Weald

Join rally to help end child poverty

A quarter of all children in south east England are living below the poverty line.

This can be changed.

That is one of the reasons I am backing the Campaign to End Child Poverty, because no child should miss out on a good start in life simply for being poor.

It seems unbelievable that the UK has one of the highest rates of child poverty in Europe, despite being the fifth richest nation.

I will be at the largest-ever rally against child poverty, in Trafalgar Square on October 4, because I believe we can show the Government we are no longer prepared to tolerate children failing in school or being put at risk of dying from poor health because of their social circumstances.

The Government made a bold promise to halve child poverty by 2010 and with less than two years to go, without bold action, this will not be a reality.

The End Child Poverty – Keep the Promise event will see charities, including the NSPCC and Barnardo's, unite with thousands of families to show their desire to see an end to child poverty.

Now is a crucial time to show your support. One in three children in Britain is living in poverty. We have to change this.

I have signed an online pledge, which will be sent to the Prime Minister telling him that child poverty is not acceptable, and I urge you to do the same.

This small action will make a big impact.

Even better, join me and thousands of others at the End Child Poverty rally and together we can show Gordon Brown we mean business. For more information, visit www.endchildpoverty.org.uk.

Chris Parker, TV presenter and NSPCC and Barnardo's supporter

Beat cancer with breakfast boost

I am writing to let KOS Media readers know that while some studies suggest up to a quarter of us do not eat breakfast at all, it is a very important meal.

As well as improving our well-being, it is also a chance to get fruit and vegetables into our diets.

Research has shown that eating plenty of fruit and vegetables reduces cancer risk. This is why the World Cancer Research Fund recommends eating at least five portions a day.

With this in mind, we have published Breakfast Boosts, which gives ideas for dishes to start the day that are healthy and tasty.

We have free copies to give away to the first 100 readers who call 020 7343 4205 and quote 'media'.

Cops and caterers up for training gong

KENT Police and a catering company are among the organisations from the county shortlisted in this year's South East finals of the National Training Awards.

The prestigious awards celebrate the positive effects of investing in high-quality training for employees.

Brakes Food Services Solutions in Ashford and the Kent Police Communication Centre in Maidstone are the county's two entries for the awards that will be given out at a ceremony in October.

They will be battling it out with 22 other finalists for the honour.

Kathryn Cook, chairwoman of the South East judging panel, said: "This year there has been a 15 per cent increase in entries for the awards in the region. I congratulate all the finalists who have made this year's shortlist."

All hands on deck for a career at sea

By MICHAEL SIMS
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

STUDENTS from across Kent will have the chance to take part in hands-on activities demonstrating career opportunities in the marine sector next month.

Thousands of young people from Kent schools and colleges are expected to meet employers and training providers at the Kent Marine Festival 2008.

The event is being held at the historic Cruise Terminal Two, Western Docks, Dover Harbour.

It aims to inspire students to explore a career in the diverse marine sector, and will offer advice about routes into the marine, engineering, hospitality and manufacturing industries.

The festival will take place on Friday, October 17. It is by invitation only from 9am-3pm, and opens to the general public free of charge from 5-7.30pm.

Event organisers will be showcasing the marine sector through a variety of activities and attractions.

These include tours of ships, talks with crews, navigation challenges, practical engineering sessions, and a talk outlining the importance of coastguards.

Exhibiters are likely to include shipping companies, marine recruiting agencies, the Royal Navy, universities and maritime training centres. Many of these will be actively looking for new students, employees and cadets.

Anne McNulty, executive director of organiser EBP Kent, said: "We are so grateful to the marine sector and the dedicated Dover Partnership working collaboratively to make a difference to the young people of this county.

"The maritime industry leads to such exciting diverse areas of employment for young people, it is very important they have the chance to fully understand the potential locally, regionally and in the global market."

The one-day festival is part of the 'Sea Vision UK' scheme that aims to promote Britain's maritime future by encouraging young people to consider careers in the Merchant Navy.

• If you would like to attend the festival, contact Anne McNulty on 01843 609310.

Price is right for campus

A NEW campus director has been appointed for the University Centre in Folkestone.

Chris Price, who lives in Canterbury, will replace Tim Barry who oversaw the launch of the campus last September.

Canterbury Christ Church University and the University of Greenwich both offer a range of vocational higher education programmes at the campus.

Mr Price said his ambition was for the centre to become recognised nationally and locally as a centre for academic learning, research and innovation in the creative industries.

The 53-year-old, who is also the programme director of the centre's performing arts programme, said: "This is the most exciting and the challenging role that I've undertaken.

"The centre has demanding student number targets to meet over the next four years, but we have the opportunity to forge a distinctive identity and I am delighted to be working with such a remarkable group of people.

"My aim is to meet the needs of the region, by raising awareness among community organisations, employers and educational institutions across the area. They are our primary partners in sustaining it for generations to come."

The Durham university graduate came to Canterbury to sing as a lay clerk in the cathedral's choir, a post he still holds 30 years on.

Mr Price will continue his role as programme director for the performing arts degree.

Young master

A SCHOOLGIRL from Kent is thought to be the youngest student ever preparing to study for a Masters degree.

Christiana Imafidon, 16, who goes to Dartford Girls' School, has had offers from a number of top UK universities to do the post-graduate course in maths but has not decided which one to pick. Excellence in Education is a non-profit making independent organisation that helps talented pupils from inner-cities and socially disadvantaged backgrounds.

A spokeswoman said Christiana has even been offered consultant roles at leading City banks and is currently considering her options.

BECOME A MULTI-SKILLED ENERGY ASSESSOR

By law trained Energy Assessors will need to carry out an estimated 3 million Energy Assessments in the year from this October - 200,000 commercial buildings, 1.8 million homes being rented and 1.1 million being sold (2.1m in normal house sale years).

Applicants are therefore required to train now - no previous surveying experience is required - at our London, Bristol, Birmingham and Manchester training centres which are approved by the Government-appointed Awarding Body for the Built Environment. The subsidised training is taken in separately bookable 1-week modules usually around current commitments and you qualify as a multi-skilled Domestic and Commercial Energy Assessor, Flood Risk Assessor and Home Inspector.

Homes now being sold already require Assessments with average fees of £70 being paid to our Assessors – fees for the 1.8m rented homes from October are expected to be similar. Fees for currently optional Home Inspections average £250 - commercial Assessments are expected to be higher. Up to 15 domestic Assessments or 6 commercial Assessments or Home Inspections are estimated to be carried out in a week, subject to size of properties and supply. As well as thousands of Assessors carrying out Energy Assessments, 7500 Home Inspectors will be needed upon Government making Home Inspections compulsory - less than a thousand are currently certified.

Regardless of the 'credit crunch' these new 'green' laws and 3 million Assessments are creating a rapidly expanding new industry which you could join, subject to interview and Aptitude test. So apply now for subsidised training and to start a new career carrying out this environmentally important work with potential multiple income stream opportunities.

Thanet Children's Participation Project

Hythe and Ashford Saturday Club

Thanet Children's Participation Project works with children and young people to enable them to engage in positive activities, contributing to their communities and making their voices and opinions heard.

Having successfully established activity clubs for children with disabilities in both Hythe and Ashford, we are now seeking to appoint an additional number of fun-loving, creative, caring and approachable Support Workers for our Saturday Clubs. As a sessional worker your focus will be to provide support and positive play and leisure experiences for children and young people with disabilities, in a scheme that will run on two Saturdays per month in each area.

You will need to have some previous experience of working with children and young people with disabilities, a sound knowledge and understanding of the issues facing disabled children and young people, and the ability to engage with children using participative methods in an informal setting. You will be educated to GCSE standard (or equivalent). Reliability and punctuality are a critical element of this role.

Hours for these posts will be variable, though as an indication for candidates sessions usually run for five-six hours per Saturday. There may be a possibility for staff to work additional hours at either scheme during school holidays; however this aspect cannot be guaranteed. All appointments are subject to an enhanced CRB disclosure.

For an informal discussion about the role please contact the project team by telephone on 01843 596659.

As well as a strong commitment to your development, we offer generous holidays, contributory stakeholder pension, childcare vouchers and flexible working.

To apply, please visit www.playyourpart.co.uk in the first instance, or call us on 0121 362 8633 quoting reference number S01266/KS. Applications must be received by Thursday 18 September, and interviews will take place on 26 September.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

KOS MEDIA (PUBLISHING) LTD TERMS AND CONDITIONS

1. Advertisements will be accepted only on the express condition that the advertiser warrants that the advertisement does not in any way contravene any existing legislation and in particular the Trade and Description Act 1968 and the Consumer Credit Act 1974.
2. It is the responsibility of all advertisers to ensure that all advertising meets all forms of government legislation and KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd (the "media owner") takes no responsibility for liability in errors and omissions to the content of our media.
3. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
4. All rates within the annual advertising agreement will be rate protected for 12 months from the first date of publication under the signed agreement.
5. Any unsuitable material posted on any website belonging to KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd by the advertiser or any associated third party will be removed or refused. All passwords and security supplied to the advertiser by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd in relation to the use of the posting of material via the media owner's online administration tool will be the responsibility of the advertiser. The advertiser indemnifies KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd against any damages as a result of misuse of these privileges by either the advertiser or any third party given password privileges by the advertiser.
6. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd reserves the right to change passwords intermittently to ensure the overall and ongoing security of its websites within the public domain.
7. Copyright and licenses for voice-over/music/photography or film for advertising promotions or otherwise within the various forms of media in print, online and moving film owned by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must have been sought, verified or paid for by the advertiser where applicable. Approval or permissions must have been given by any potential beneficial owner voice-over or music. The advertiser must be able to verify any statements or claims (promotional or otherwise) in relation to their products/services promoted within any of the media offerings belonging to KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd.
8. Where shrinkage of an advertisement occurs for whatever reason, the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre where it relates to the media owner's printed publications. This will NOT apply to full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
9. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd reserves the right to omit or refuse any advertisement/commercial/web content without notice or explanation. In these terms the word "advertiser" shall be construed to include any person or organisation placing an advertisement on behalf of another.
10. A guarantee of insertion cannot be given and the media owners shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused by any error inaccuracy within your marketing content. In no case shall the total liability of the media owner for any error or omission exceed the price charged by the media owners for that advertising.
11. No liability is accepted for any loss or damage alleged to have arisen through delay in forwarding replies to Box numbers, however caused, nor for the loss or damage to any artwork supplied.
12. Claims for any error or inaccuracy in your media messages with KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must be made in writing to the accounts department within 10 days of publishing
13. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd accepts no responsibility for any errors or omissions made on their websites by the advertiser.
14. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd has the right to cancel the advertiser's annual membership without notice should the advertiser deliberately publish out of date material or content on any of the media owner's online digital platforms. KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd will seek to recover, in full, all outstanding invoices in relation to the signed annual membership as a result of the advertiser's negligence in this regard and reserves the right to claim damages for any potential vexatious action via the advertiser.
15. Advertisers are requested to check their advertisements after the first insertion. The media owner will not be responsible for any errors on subsequent insertions, which have not been advised to them in writing.
16. A minimum of one month's notice must be given in writing for any cancellation of the signed annual advertiser's agreement. Upon cancellation, all discounts from KOS Media's standard effective media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009) will be recalculated and adjusted accordingly in line with KOS Media's standard media rate card (effective July 2008-June 2009) and will reflect the revised length of commitment denoted by the advertiser's written cancellation. Any surcharges, refunds or costs in relation to the production of the advertiser's TV commercial for the commitment set out within the advertiser's agreement will be met in full by the advertiser as per KOS Media's standard media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009). Discounts will be reapplied and any refunds or surcharges will be paid by either party within 30 days of the advertiser's written cancellation. Any other advertising placed must give a minimum of seven days' written notice and any discounts given for series bookings will be forfeited by the advertiser upon cancellation.
17. Seasonal contracts, Your Professional classified advertisements or any uplift advertising within the annual contract with the advertiser will be invoiced in full - at rate card - on receipt of any written cancellation of this contract within the 12-months.
18. All uplift advertisements must be booked in at least three months in advance of publication and will be subject to availability. All dates booked will be on a first-come, first-served basis.
19. The advertiser must agree to the date and time of filming of any online TV advertising commercial supplied by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd within the advertiser's agreement, (Platinum, Gold, Silver standard of commercial). Should, for any reason, the advertiser not be available at the agreed time without giving sufficient notice (at least 48 hours), KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd reserves the right to charge for any further TV production at its standard published hourly rate should the advertiser still wish to use KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd's production services to complete its TV commercial or photographic imagery included in the advertiser's agreement. The advertiser will approve and accept that there are only two choices of voice-over and music offered by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd. Should an advertiser wish to use other voice-overs or non-copyright free music it is the responsibility of the advertiser to pay the PRS rights should they be required to do so. Any changes to or failure to approve the TV production by the deadlines agreed between both parties will result in KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd being given permission by the advertiser to replace the TV commercial with pictures or stills from a choice of photography supplied by the media owner until the advertiser can supply a TV commercial produced at their own cost and risk outside of this agreement. The advertiser also accepts and agrees that this action would not reduce the value or cost of their membership. Any cost of changes required to the TV commercial throughout the advertiser's agreement will be borne by the advertiser outside of this agreement.
20. Each advertiser accepts that their ranking and position within KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd's search engine will be equal to those within their category (Platinum, Gold, Silver, Bronze, etc) other than they will be ranked based on the search engine criteria of optimisation within their level (Platinum, Gold, Silver or Bronze).
21. Any delivery claims made by the advertiser or discount vouchers published within the print or online media of KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd and any action as a result of the public or otherwise is the sole responsibility of the advertiser. Any claims resulting from this via KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must be met by the advertiser.
22. a. All credit accounts due for payment shall be notified to the Advertiser by the 30th day following the date of the invoice, time to be of the essence. All sums due to KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd or RBS Factoring shall be paid in full, and the Advertiser shall have no right of set off in any circumstances.
    b. In the event that payment is not received by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd or RBS Factoring by the due date, the media owner shall be entitled to suspend all further advertising until payment is received and/or repudiate the contract and make any surcharges for breaking the contract.
    c. In the event that payment is not received by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd by the due date, the media owner reserves the right to charge interest on all overdue balances calculated on a daily basis at the rate of two per cent above the minimum lending rate of National Westminster Bank Plc from time to time in force.
    d. Not withstanding anything in these terms and conditions or implied to the contrary, in the event of the Advertiser ceasing to use the services of KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd (for whatever reason), the whole amount of monies due from the Advertiser to the date of cessation shall fall due for immediate payment.
    e. The Advertiser will be liable for all costs incurred by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd in the recovery of debts not paid by the due date.
    f. Payment may be made by cheque, credit transfer, direct debit, cash and any major credit card.
23. Any discount which KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd may have agreed with the Advertiser shall be forfeited in the event of failure by the Advertiser to complete the contract or to meet the above credit terms.
24. Advertising Agency commission will be allowed to those advertisers recognised by the Newspaper Society, but shall not exceed ten per cent and will be subject to the terms of that recognition. This commission will not be allowed if the Advertising Agency fails to meet the terms.
25. All private advertisements and certain categories as laid down by KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must be prepaid.
26. The Advertiser agrees to indemnify KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd in respect of all costs, damages or other charges falling upon the media owners or any of the companies within the KOS Media Group as the result of legal action or threatened legal action or threatened legal arising from the publication of any advertisement or advertising promotion.
27. An order for an advertisement shall amount to acceptance of these terms and conditions, and any condition placed on an order by an Advertiser shall be null and void in so far as it conflicts with them.
28. Copyright in advertisements produced wholly or partially by the media owners belong to KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the media owner's written consent.

All terms and conditions stated above are in place to protect the advertiser, the media owner and the communities they serve within the public domain as well as the beneficial rights of individuals and organisations. KOS Media will endeavour to always act reasonably in applying its terms and conditions.

Construction Architecture & Surveying

Become a Multi Skilled Energy Assessor

Salary: TBA
No previous surveying experience is required, at our London, Bristol, Birmingham and Manchester training centres which are approved by the Government appointed Awarding Body for the Built Environment. The subsidised training is taken in separately bookable 1 week modules usually around current commitments and you qualify as a multi-skilled Domestic and Commercial Energy Assessor, Flood Risk Assessor and Home Inspector. Homes now being sold already require Assessments with average fees of £70 being paid to our Assessors - fees for the 1.8m rented homes from October are expected to be similar. Fees for currently optional home inspections average £250 - commercial Assessments are expected to be higher. Up to 15 domestic Assessments or 6 commercial Assessments or Home Inspections are estimated to be carried out in a week, subject to size of properties and supply. As well as thousands of Assessors carrying out Energy Assessments, 7500 Home Inspectors will be needed upon Government making Home Inspections compulsory - less than a thousand are currently certified. Regardless of the credit crunch, these new "green" laws and 3 million Assessments are creating a rapidly expanding new industry which you join, subject to interview and Aptitude test. So apply now for subsidised training and to start a new career carrying out this environmentally important work with potential multiple income stream opportunities.

Customer Service, Call Centre

SALES AGENTS

Folkestone
Salary: £16k – £18k OTE (uncapped) + excellent benefits package
Closing Date: 26 September 2008
Listening to customers. Taking the time to understand their needs. Building a real rapport with them. That's what we call doing things properly for our customers as we deliver great service, selling our products to people aged 50 and over. And if you can help us achieve that, we'll do things properly for you too. That means excellent training and development at every stage. It also means unlimited earnings potential and superb benefits including private healthcare, pension scheme, free car parking, social club and discounts on insurance products, holidays and flights for you and your relatives. What's more, it means a friendly working environment – as well as all the training and support you need to do a terrific job. The question is, have you got what it takes to be part of this fast-growing national company? You'll need to be target driven and able to rise to new challenges, that's for sure. But above all you must share our commitment to getting things right. Every time. If it's time for you to enjoy the rewards you deserve please write enclosing your CV, quoting reference SVS243/KOS, to Kerry Harrison, HR Officer, Saga Group Limited, The Saga Building, Enbrook Park, Folkestone, Kent CT20 3SE or e-mail:

Visitor Services Team Leader

Canterbury
Salary: £25,581 to £28,041
Closing Date: 12 noon Friday 19 September 2008
Canterbury City Council is a big business with a turnover of more than £100 million and over 900 employees. Rated an Excellent Council and a Times Best Council to Work For, Canterbury is a great place to work. Our conditions include final salary pension scheme plus benefits, flexible working hours and relocation package (where applicable). With your experience in a busy customer services or retail environment, we don't need to tell you how to manage and motivate a team. But as we always put the customer first, you'll need to be absolutely committed to exceeding their expectations too. You'll need to lead and coach to get the best out of your people and make sure they understand our district inside and out. With an internal restructure happening alongside the daily running of a Visitor Information Centre that has a footfall of over half a million people a year, you'll certainly be kept busy. The ideal candidate will have: Excellent customer service management experience, ideally from a retail or query-driven organisation. The ability to plan, implement, manage, monitor and report on the Business Plan for the Visitor Services Department. Experience of managing and developing a large team of customer service professionals. Strong budget management skills with experience in meeting financial targets. Experience in monitoring success against KPI targets with regular reporting on progress. Think you can give our staff what they need to give our customers what they deserve? Then apply now. Interviews will take place on: Wednesday 1 October 2008 We prefer applications on-line. # Skoda no joke with this Superb effort

By STEVE LOADER

SKODA used to make cars that really were 'Superb', and now it has tried again.

In the interim, it has made some of the grottiest cars ever made and become a by-word for motoring humour.

So, is this another Skoda joke? Can you double its value by filling the tank with fuel or is it another word for a skip?

Well, if you still find those old chestnuts funny then you obviously don't know that Skoda is now owned by VW and has been so completely transformed over the past decade or so that it does not just make clones of Vee-Dubs, but bespoke models.

Which is why this new Superb is special; the Czech marque made its name and the original Superb models before World War Two, as pre-communist Czechoslovakia's equivalent of Rolls-Royce.

When it revived the Superb label in 2002 it was worn by a long wheelbase clone from the then previous generation VW Passat, with all the unsettled chassis faults of that car.

On the other hand, the reborn Superb was nearly that if you needed lots of rear legroom and straight line comfort, did a lot of towing or ran a cut-price chauffeur operation by day and an upmarket mini-cab operation by night.

However, I suspect that nobody need make excuses for the next generation Superb arriving this week.

Yes, it will be ridiculously cheap again – from £15,490 – for an executive class model and the oily bits come from the VW collective, but the car has its own styling this time and an innovative boot-cum-hatchback that should please all markets, plus keep cabbies happy when the car starts to filter into the used sector.

Despite a shorter wheelbase this time, Skoda engineers and designers have also created a roomier cabin.

As usual, Skoda's spec levels will be embarrassingly generous. Even the junior S trim comes with seven airbags, split folding rear seats, climate control, electric windows all round, electrically adjustable and heated door mirrors, 16-inch alloys, electronic stability control and front fog lights.

In short, while the new Superb has an executive aura, it will undermine ever-dwindling volumes in the mainstream family saloon/hatchback or Mondeo sector already abandoned by makers such as Nissan.

It should also send a very loud message to those deafheads who still think Skoda is that Iron Curtain brand that made cars that didn't go round corners very well.

Focus on RS is well ahead of '09 launch

FORD has been swamped by orders for the high performance Ford Focus RS previewed at the British International Motor Show in July.

That event must have influenced the thousand customers who have placed orders so far – 40 per cent want their car in the unique 'Electric Green' shade of the show car as pictured here.

Other popular requests are 'Electric Blue' and – confirming the phoenix-like re-birth of white in the new car market – 'Frozen White'.

The re-birth of the RS (Rallye Sport) badge is backed by a 300PS (297bhp) version of Ford's Duratec 2.5-litre five-cylinder turbocharged engine – the Volvo derived 225 PS unit that has made the Focus ST one of the best hot hatchbacks available.

The RS badge was last used on a 2002 Focus Mark 1 version and the legend began with the Ford Escort RS1600 of 1970. The latest incumbent arrives in early '09.

Peugeot's new surfers' option

TAKE yourself down to any surfing beach and you realise that VW Campers or 'Combis' are the wheels of choice for surfer dudes.

But few are well-heeled enough to pay the sky-high prices these now command, so the humble Peugeot Partner/Citroën Berlingo van or MPV spin-off has become a default option – you can get tons of gear inside and boards on top of these workhorses and they have sold as practical family load-luggers too.

The lesson has not been missed by Peugeot, which has followed up with the Partner Tepee based on the 308 car rather than a van this time and also underlining the French marque's new 'Tepee' sub-brand, also used for the bigger Expert Tepee – a cut-price spin-off from the big 807 people carrier.

The Partner Tepee (from £11,215) seats up to five people, has sliding rear side doors and majors on storage, removable seating and versatility – there is even an optional internal roof rack designed to take up to three metre surfboards inside the vehicle.

There is also a Zenith multi-purpose roof option with 80 litres of extra storage beneath the high roof plus four large glazed panels for extra airiness in the cabin.

Insignia fires Vauxhall's confidence in new Astra

BUOYED by the reception for the styling of the new Insignia family model out next month, Vauxhall is teasing the market with this glimpse of the next Astra hatchback.

It has also confirmed that it will use the Insignia's 'sculpted blade' motif on the front wing as well as building the car on an all-new chassis.

Top-notch timing Proton for 'no cost' LPG fuel option

PROTON has brought a timely new twist to its value brand reputation by launching a cut-price dual-fuel version of the GEN-2 Ford Focus sector challenger.

The 'ecoLogic' GEN-2 version arrives as UK motorists tighten their belts in the face of the credit crunch and high road tax and fuel costs, and capitalises on renewed interest in cut-price LPG (liquefied petroleum gas).

LPG currently costs 58p a litre, but an after-market conversion for a car costs £1,500-2,000; the factory-fitted installation on the ecoLogic GEN-2 costs exactly the same price as its petrol equivalent – £10,995 in hatchback or £10,795 in saloon form.

The ecologic should also deliver a 40 per cent cut in fuel costs, based on an average annual mileage of 10,000 miles and the prices of petrol and LPG at £1.12 and 58p respectively (source: Fleet News) – a saving of more than £500.

Refuelling

More than 140,000 UK vehicles currently run on LPG, but the fuel has had mixed fortunes over the years due to an inconsistent spread of refuelling points and ill-judged taxation by the Government.

Both Vauxhall and Ford were notable exponents of dual fuel, producing Astra and Focus variants respectively and using the spare wheel well for the gas tank, but take-up was disappointing.

There are now 1,400 refuelling sites around the UK though, including motorway service stations and major supermarkets, and the fuel's greater eco-friendliness may deter further taxation; LPG produces less carbon monoxide, particulates and nitrous oxides than other fuel sources and CO2 'greenhouse gas' emissions are 15-20 per cent lower than petrol.

It is also more environmentally friendly to produce, being a simple by-product from extraction and refining of crude oil.

The new GEN-2 ecoLogic starts on petrol and then switches automatically to LPG when it is most efficient to do so rather than relying on the driver's memory.

This is usually after about 20 seconds and creates an almost imperceptible difference in performance.

The LPG is topped up via a second filler cap next to the petrol cap, matched to the exact colour of the car, and the tank is in the spare wheel well to avoid stealing boot space.

The ecoLogic GEN-2 has a 1.6-litre engine and standard kit includes reversing sensors, air con, electric front and rear windows, automatic central locking and alloys. Both versions are available with a £1,000 leather interior option, but this is available free on the ecoLogic hatchback during the launch phase.

Roadster Coupe drives MX-5 legend further

Mazda MX-5

ROOF FOR ALL SEASONS: Mazda's latest MX-5 Roadster Coupe is available with a power folding hard-top roof

MAZDA launched the original MX-5 here in 1990, 10 years after the initial sketches and several decades after some of the classic British sports cars that inspired it.

If gestation was protracted though, the life of this famous roadster is set to endure much longer.

Now in its third generation, the successful formula remains: front engine/rear-wheel drive for best balance and handling, sporty short-throw gearshift and Japanese reliability.

However, the latest car has a contemporary twist; having ensured that the MX-5 would have a genuinely weatherproof soft top – unlike its British forbears – Mazda also offers a powered folding hard-top version or 'Roadster Coupe' as tested here.

Much as I love the soft-top model, its secure all-seasons/all-weathers sister is something of a no-brainer option for a not unreasonable two grand premium.

Since the latest MX-5 carries little extra weight compared with the 1990 model, despite modern extras and safety/crash measures, the small baggage penalty is also bearable – the Roadster Coupe carries just 37 kilos more than its soft-top sibling.

Even better, Mazda engineers ensured that the hard top retracts behind the car's seats without penalising boot space either, although you lose out on two small lockers behind the seats.

And this MX-5 drives as well as ever, with great poise on a winding road and good motorway refinement, although the MX-5 was always that rarity – a sports car to make light of long journeys.

Not surprisingly then the Roadster Coupe version has really taken off; Mazda expected a 50:50 sales split, but the 'RC' has now stolen 65 per cent of sales with Dartford-based Mazda UK citing added security and no compromising of boot space as the big draws when buyers need to make the choice between hard or soft-top versions.

If it is looks that come first though, I still think the soft top edges it, especially when fitted with the optional removable hard top, although this costs an extra £1,560 and wipes out much of the saving on a soft top against the 'built-in' lid on the Roadster Coupe and you have to manhandle it off and store it safely when not in use.

The take-up on soft-top versions sold with hard tops is small then, perhaps no more than 200 a year says Mazda, though sales to owners of used and older MX-5s continues to be buoyant and perhaps signals the car's affordable prestige amongst sports car enthusiasts.

Prices start at just £15,750 for new soft-top cars, but this cut-price version sits on steel wheels; you simply must upgrade to alloys, which means forking out an extra £800 for an option pack also fitted as standard on the Roadster Coupe (£18,600) entry version tested here.

This has a 125bhp 1.8-litre engine and five-speed 'box rather than the flagship 159bhp 2.0-litre offered with five or six speeds.

While the junior engine's 0-62mph in 9.4 seconds is not exactly neck-snapping and does little to dispel 'hairdresser's sports car' jibes that have burdened the MX-5 throughout, it offers enough power to prove that no other car delivers so much fun to the pound.

And though the current car echoes the classic Mark 1, the interior is a far cry from the original. All the modern comforts are here: good body-hugging seats with good support, robust materials and switchgear, far more space than ever before and useful stowage.

Go all the way up to 11 with rocker

By TONY PATEY
tony.patey@kosmedia.co.uk

MEAT LOAF'S line from Wasted Youth – "God damn it daddy! You know I love you, but you got a hell of a lot to learn about rock 'n' roll" – would certainly go down well at gigs run by a Kent business guru who really rocks.

Business consultant Peter Cook – author of Sex, Leadership and Rock 'n' Roll – is just about to start his latest team-building exercise with a gig in a recording studio.

A group of half a dozen amateurs have been picked from Medway's MHS Homes housing association and after the recording session in Rochester on September 19 they'll be playing a corporate jam during their annual conference in a local school, on October 29.

MHS chief executive John Sands has written Credit Crunch Blues for the band, which will also be rocking out Regeneration, based loosely on The Who classic My Generation.

But it's just another brick in the wall for Mr Cook, who runs the Gillingham-based Academy of Rock, and whose book has been praised by business gurus such as Professor Charles Handy and Tom Peters.

He was also in the Financial Times this week. He wrote a letter saying it's not unusual for John McFarlane, prospective chairman of the Royal Bank of Scotland, to like Elvis. And he mentioned Peter Gilroy, Kent County Council's chief executive, who's well-known for his Elvis impersonations, and a fan of Mr Cook's work. He started life as a chemist – current clients include Pfizer and GlaxoSmithKline – and he holds an MBA. Other clients include KCC and the Metropolitan Police.

"My story has been one of transformation, from a rocker and research chemist-cum-scientific leader, developing life-saving drugs, via a short stay as a corporate suit to building my own business as a creativity consultant.

"At 18 I was torn by a love of playing in bands and a passion for chemistry. I took a job in pharmaceuticals, where I could study part-time for a chemistry degree and keep my musical ambitions as a hobby.

"After a few years I found my HR co-workers were not that interested in self-improvement, so I left to start my own business.

"I define success as being in tune with who you are. The three things that have shaped my success are: being focused on a compelling desire to achieve goals; persisting no matter what; and not feeling afraid to try things out."

STRAT TALK: Author and business guru Peter Cook is ready to help you rock

Lounge festival moves indoors with Farmhouse venture

KENT legends the James Taylor Quartet, the influential band at the forefront of the acid jazz movement, are in talks to play Lounge on the Farm next year, KOS Media can exclusively reveal.

The news follows this year's coup of having the New York Dolls play their only UK summer set at the Canterbury weekender.

Now the team behind the increasingly heavyweight festival have opened a permanent urban residence – The Farmhouse restaurant, in Dover Street, Canterbury – after another successful summer at Merton Farm. They aim to boost the city's economy and bring artists and DJs from across the country to Canterbury. Local talent will also be encouraged. It's not often a venue is spawned from a festival – it's usually the other way round. At the bar will be local ales and brews from micro-breweries such as Gadds and Hopdaemon, and offerings from Pawley Farm and Biddendens.

Organiser Matt Gough said the first Lounge on the Farm was in 2006 and featured local talent on four stages along with headline acts including The Egg, The View, DJ Andy Smith, Nizlopi and Vincent Vincent and The Villains. He said: "The history, like so many romantic tales, begins with a number scribbled on the back of a fag packet.

"There was a chance meeting between 'Lounge original' Sean Porn and the son of a farmer as they watched a band perform aboard on a flatbed lorry in the middle of Canterbury in the spring of 2004."

The son was Edward Hulme. His family owns Merton Farm. Ideas were exchanged. A telephone number was hastily jotted on a pack of Marlboros, and the festival was born.

Mr Gough said: "Previous to that we were responsible for nights in and around Canterbury since 1999. This year we had just under 4,000 people at Merton Farm.

"We try to source everything from within county lines. At least 75 per cent of the infrastructure of the festival comes from Kent. We put a lot of effort into championing local producers."

Artists already lined up for a trip to The Farmhouse include Pete Molinari, The View, DJ Format, Kevin Rowland and Kent poet, artist, writer and film-maker Billy Childish.

Talk, listen, listen, talk.

It's what we're good at.

The art of good communication is to talk and listen in equal measure. It's also the art of being a good solicitor.

Make the best use of pregnant pause

BOSSES of expectant mothers whose babies are due on or after October 5 will find it is not just mum and baby who are starting out on a new journey.

As a result of a ruling made by the High Court last year, the date also marks changes that employers must make to the contractual benefits entitled by staff on maternity leave.

Simon Morgan, a human resources professional for The HR Dept, based in Dartford and Crayford, said that by 'benefits' the regulations mean perks such as company car, mobile phone and gym membership as well as the accrual of contractual holiday entitlement. Maternity leave is currently divided into two parts; 26 weeks of Ordinary Maternity Leave (OML) and 26 weeks of Additional Maternity Leave (AML)

By TONY PATEY
tony.patey@kosmedia.co.uk

Prior to the ruling, an employer was only obliged to provide an employee's contractual benefits for the period covering OML.

But for all women whose babies are due on or after October 5, employers will have to provide contractual benefits for the entire 52 weeks.

The ruling draws a clear line between perks and wages. So, if a car allowance is paid as part of the wages package, for example, a woman on maternity leave will not receive this.

It also stresses that mothers may not take holiday entitlement during maternity leave, so they must do so before it starts or after returning, regardless of whether they have opted to take the full entitlement of 52 weeks or not.

Mr Morgan said: "On-the-ball employers will not wait until October to address these changes, but recognise that company policies may need reviewing and should be discussed with pregnant employees before they start maternity leave."

AN AGENCY called England has won a six-figure pitch to create a safety campaign encouraging people in Medway to take more care using the roads.

England, which has an office in Canterbury, beat five rivals to win the Medway council campaign. It will be launched in mid-October.

Research has shown collisions are increasingly being caused because drivers, cyclists and pedestrians are distracted by things such as mobile phones and MP3 players. The campaign is to remind road users of the risks.

WILLOW CAIRN: Focusing on business plans

Networking with Willow

SHARING the ups and downs of setting up their own business will be the focus of a new free networking group in Thanet for people just starting out.

The Venture Group will be meeting once a month at the Margate Media Centre in King Street, starting on Thursday, September 18, from 10am-noon.

"If you are at any stage of setting up a business, then this group is for you," said organiser Willow Cairn, East Kent Enterprise Gateway Service's new Thanet outreach worker.

"The sessions will provide an excellent opportunity for people to focus on their new business plans."

The service offers the unemployed, people who are working just a few hours a week or in a situation that makes it hard to find suitable work, free training courses covering every aspect of running a business, along with finding a local mentor. Other confirmed dates are October 14 and November 11. For more details, email willow.cairn@businesslinkkent.co.uk, phone 07806 377926 or visitwww.bringyourideastolife.co.uk.

Still fresh after all these years

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Just completing his two-year tenure as president of the British Frozen Food Federation is Stephen Waugh, managing director of Ardo UK. The company, based at Charing, near Ashford, is part of the Belgian Ardo Group, Europe's largest supplier of frozen fruit and vegetables. Its product range includes traditional favourites such as carrots, raspberries and strawberries, along with blueberries, okra, chick peas, and Italian rice and pasta dishes. KOS Media business editor Tony Patey spoke to Mr Waugh.

Q *What are you most proud of achieving in your two years as president of the British Frozen Food Federation?

A As part of a small team we have met with the Schools Foods Trust, the local authorities' catering association, Ofsted and Government representative and raised awareness of the quality, nutritional and economic benefits of frozen foods that will ensure more of our children eat school meals.

Q *How did you get where you are today?

A After a brief period in banking and retail sales, I worked as a field rep with Express Creameries, selling cheese and dairy products in the cash and carry and wholesale sectors. I had a great time for six years.

I then spent 18 months at Smedley's, selling chilled salads and frozen vegetables, then moving to Freshbake, which became the Albert Fisher Group. Over 14 years I worked my way up to sales director and eventually managing director, in overall charge of a workforce of 600, which was pretty scary.

After a career spanning 26 years I found myself redundant, enjoyed a seven-month break, then joined Ardo UK as MD in 2002.

Q *Just how fresh is frozen?

A We fast-freeze our fruit and vegetables, taking the produce straight from the field to freezer in a matter of hours.

The vitamins and nutrients are retained, the colour and shape of the berry, sweetcorn or pea is just as it was the moment it was picked. Consumers can reach into their freezers and enjoy their five-a-day portions of fruit and vegetables without waste.

Q *What is the industry doing to tackle ethical issues?

A We recently carried out an audit for our corporate responsibility report and are proud to be able to source fruit and vegetables from emerging economies including Vietnam, Peru, Costa Rica and Mexico.

Our aim by the end of this year, is to have at least 80 per cent of Ardo's suppliers listed on Sedex (Supplier Ethical Data Exchange).

On the home front, we source 36 per cent of products and services from Kent-based companies. Ardo is constantly striving to reduce its carbon footprint.

Q *What qualities do you most admire in a leader?

A A team player with integrity who consults, confides, honestly shares information and makes people feel at ease and important.

Q *What's the biggest challenge facing Kent?

A The infrastructure – can it cope with all this expansion and will the jobs be here when the people are?

Q *What do you enjoy doing when you're not working?

A Aside from spending time with my children Jamie and Charlotte, and my best friend and wife Amanda, I enjoy golf, fishing, holidays in France and socialising at the pub.

Managers must be prepared as economic conditions close in

With consumer confidence dropping, local companies and public sector organisations must act now or face a potentially gloomy outlook writes Paul Gresham, Senior Partner for KPMG in Gatwick.

There is no doubt that Kent has been in a period of relative calm in comparison with the woes inflicted upon the city of London following last year's credit crunch. However, as current surveys bear, the knock-on effect of the credit crunch is now hitting home, with managers reporting lowering levels of confidence in the forthcoming economic climate.

The elements that are coming together – rising inflation, tightening credit conditions and plummeting consumer confidence – will make life difficult for at least, the next 12 months. Indeed, many good managers will be factoring in a longer term threat to ensure their business does not get caught out.

There is much talk of inflation continuing to rise and this is likely to spark increases in costs which in turn will hit businesses with the double whammy of decreasing profit margins and higher wage demands from employees as they grapple with the rising cost of living. As a result, a business is likely to feel squeezed from both sides and how managers deal with this will be crucial in determining success or failure.

From previous market turmoil, including the recession in the 1990s we have learnt that a 'business as usual' strategy is simply the wrong approach. As a result, organisations need to focus on key areas for their survival and do so quickly to ensure they are as well positioned as they can be when pressures really begin to bear down.

Businesses need to take steps to reduce costs and improve cash flow. By interrogating their forecasts, talking to customers and questioning their spending and use of working capital, managers can identify key risks and opportunities within their business.

Whether releasing cash from a business or ensuring that appropriate controls are in place to stop any losses as a result of fraudulent behaviour, local organisations need to take stock now.

Whether operating in the public or private sector, it is easy to fire-fight and not maintain a push for future growth. However, it is vitally important to remain focused on the overall strategy and not lose sight of the fact that changing economic conditions can provide opportunities.

The new and emerging markets remain the global powerhouses and for the time being are still performing well against difficult global conditions. As a result, for those businesses who have not yet considered carefully whether they have a market within these areas, a major threat could loom from competitors.

Furthermore, as their economy continues to hold up, inward investment opportunities remain. In recent months there have been a number of announcements about joint ventures between local firms and those in emerging markets. With funding for such activities not affected as much as in the developed nations, it is unlikely that we will see any let up in this as we move through the next 12 months.

Opportunities also exist for those organisations that want to acquire businesses and are able to secure funding from other sources. With the power shifting from the seller to the acquirers, there are many opportunities for prices to be driven down and strategic acquisitions made.

Whichever area is causing the most concern, the work must start here. For those organisations that choose to ride out the storm and hope for the best, a tricky future is likely to lie ahead, even after conditions begin to improve. Conversely, for those businesses who tackle the issues head on, they stand a greater chance of emerging from this part of the economic cycle in a stronger, more competitive position.

Susan strengthens private client team

IN A consolidation move, Sussex law firm Adams and Remers has strengthened its private client team by a merger with the sole practitioner and specialist private client practice of Susan J Midha, based in Tunbridge Wells.

Susan Midha has now joined the firm as a partner, taking with her experienced solicitor Lisa Gibbins. Adams and Remers' private client team now includes three partners and nine lawyers and professionals. Ms Midha, who practised at the Bar and was formerly head of the private client team at City law firm Manches, has a wealth of experience in wills, probate, trusts, tax and inheritance tax planning and a national client base.

Christopher Walker, partner and head of the private client practice at Adams and Remers, said: "We are delighted Susan chose to join us in preference to other firms who were keen to get her. This is further progress towards our aim to be the South East's leading private client firm."

Ms Midha is a member of the Society of Trust and Estate Practitioners (STEP) and formerly chairman of its Kent branch, a member of the Association of Contentious Trust and Probate Specialists (ACTAPS), and a member of Solicitors for the Elderly.

She is also a member of the STEP working party on trustee risk and an accredited mediator.

Growth flattened in 'perfect storm'

By TONY PATEY
tony.patey@kosmedia.co.uk

MORE than half the South East's small-business owners are expecting either flat or negative growth during the current year, according to new research from Bank of Scotland Business Banking.

The fifth quarterly fall in a row in its key business confidence index means confidence levels have fallen by more than a third since May last year.

More than four out of every five of the region's small-business owners now expect general economic conditions to worsen over the next 12 months – more than double the number expressing a pessimistic outlook this time last year.

Not surprisingly, two-thirds of them think that it will become more difficult to run their business over the coming year.

However, a quarter believe now is a good time to be running a small business in Britain, compared with half who think it's a bad time. The knock-on effect for recruitment intentions is also clear. Just one in five plans to increase staff numbers over the next 12 months, compared with 30 per cent in May last year.

Interestingly, despite a sharp fall in confidence, building and construction firms are still relatively busy, with more than a quarter still operating at or near full capacity.

Only one in 11 businesses in the leisure, tourism and hospitality sectors say they are operating at or close to capacity, with one in nine expressing an urgent need for more orders.

Meanwhile, more than half of Britain's businesses plan to make job cuts, but while more than half believe the bleak outlook will continue for one to two years, only one in 10 believe a full-blown recession is on the cards, according to KPMG's quarterly National Business Confidence Survey,

Paul Gresham, senior partner for KPMG in Kent, said: "The clouds that were on the horizon when we conducted this survey in early spring are now right overhead, with businesses now feeling the impact of this so-called 'perfect storm' of rising inflation, tightening credit conditions and plummeting consumer confidence. With six out of 10 businesses aiming to cut costs, staff redundancies may seem like the obvious, albeit painful, solution.

"The widespread redundancy programmes we have already seen in the financial services and housebuilding sectors may therefore just be a small sign of things to come."

Recycling first for the Co-op

THE Co-operative Group has become the first UK retailer to use rPET plastic bottles across its entire own-brand range of carbonated drinks and mixers, thanks to Kent-based supplier Silver Spring.

The move to 100 per cent recycled rPET bottles – including the Co-op's own-label 330ml sportcap juice drinks – will reduce $CO_2$ emissions by 1,212 tonnes and save 808 tonnes of new plastic from being made per annum.

David Hanlon, operations director at Silver Spring, said: "We have strong relations with suppliers of rPET and are easily able to meet the high demand from our customers."

Family-owned Silver Spring employs 260 staff at its headquarters in Folkestone.

MANAGING OUR COUNTRYSIDE - more important than ever

Pat Crawford reports.

If you are confused by the title 'countryside manager' and cannot imagine what the job involves, then you are probably among the majority. It's another of those career areas about which there is almost total confusion! In essence, countryside managers are responsible for ensuring that we retain the important ecological balances that are increasingly under threat from practices associated with our modern way of life.

Biodiversity is being lost at an alarming rate. It seems that, every time we open a newspaper or turn on the TV, we are bombarded with reports of yet another British species which is already classified as 'endangered' or the numbers of which are reducing at a terrifying rate. The list is long and includes favourites such as the water vole ('Ratty' in Kenneth Graham's Wind in the Willows) and several species of butterfly and fish. Once common birds such as the song thrush and the skylark, various beetles, several species of hoverfly and a wide range of fungi, ferns, lichens and mosses – just a few examples from a list that is growing at a truly alarming rate.

The main reason for this decline is related to human activity associated with urbanisation, agriculture and deforestation. Climate change – 'global warming' - is another contributory factor (and it will not escape readers' notice that most scientists believe this is one more problem that is largely manmade). Over-exploitation is another cause - and the introduction of foreign species which out-perform our native species is a further source of trouble. (As an example, the beautiful and sweet smelling British bluebell is under threat from the strong but inferior Spanish bluebell.) The introduction of foreign species can also be a way of spreading diseases hitherto unknown in this country.

The task faced by the countryside manager becomes more complex all the time. He must find a way of maintaining the delicate balance between protecting habitats whilst allowing the public to access and enjoy them. He is required to find holistic solutions that take into account the needs of agriculture, tourism, sustainability and the many other uses to which land is put.

Concern is growing around the planet and more and more people are aware of the fragile state of the environment. The work the countryside manager undertakes is crucial if we are to reverse the frightening rate at which species are declining. This is an exciting, demanding – and potentially fulfilling – time to be considering this interesting and important career area.

Hadlow College offers a wide range of courses at Further and Higher Education levels, including Foundation and BSc (honours) degrees, for those considering countryside management as a career as well as a number of Further Education options. In addition, the college provides a number of short professional/recreational courses covering countryside skills such as hurdle-making, hedge laying, hedgerow establishment, et cetera. Telephone: 0500 551434 to discuss the various options.

There's much to digest as Archers hit the zeitgeist

By TONY PATEY
tony.patey@kosmedia.co.uk

LISTENERS to The Archers won't need telling about anaerobic digesters.

The tycoon farmers of Ambridge are discussing a proposal for a digester at Home Farm on the Radio 4 soap, but will Kent farmers be just as keen?

The fictional village's inhabitants are at loggerheads about the merits of the farm-scale proposal, but environment minister Joan Ruddock is convinced it is the way forward after seeing a £30 million large-scale trial site in Shropshire.

She is quoted as saying: "Anaerobic digestion is extremely attractive. Why would we go on throwing food waste into holes in the ground when we could generate our own electricity and end up with a product that can be returned to the soil?

Consultation

"It seems to me that a plant on this scale would fit into any industrial estate anywhere in the country.

"While the decision has to be taken locally – and in consultation with residents – I am sure this is the way forward."

Most food waste in the UK goes to landfill, where it decomposes and is a contributor to greenhouse gas emissions.

But the country is running out of suitable sites and, with punitive landfill taxes introduced to encourage the search for alternatives, digesters are seen as a viable solution.

The technology has been available for years – more than 4,000 have been built in Germany alone – only five commercial-scale and about a dozen farm-scale units have so far been built in the UK.

However, the Government is offering £10m in grants to encourage the construction of further demonstrator plants and there are plans for at least 60.

Anaerobic digestion is when organic material is broken down by micro-organisms in the absence of oxygen – the same process used in septic tanks and what goes on in cows' stomachs.

Farmers are becoming keen because it treats waste products – mainly manure and slurry – in a more efficient way and also produces valuable by-products.

Organic matter degrades and gives off biogas, a mixture mainly of methane and carbon dioxide. This can be burned to generate heat and electricity, which can be fed to the national grid or used locally.

The liquid residue can be used as a fertiliser and the solid residue can go as a soil conditioner.

Apparently, the storyline of the Home Farm digester is that it might produce enough electricity for 13 homes, although this will mainly be supplied to the grid.

Some of the heat is recirculated and the rest will be used to heat the polytunnels, so it will be located near to the polytunnel area.

There are still deals waiting to be done

COMMERCIAL developers are still in the market for sites, says a leading Kent property company.

RPC Land and New Homes believes the right site will still attract a lot of interest from residential developers, but commercial and mixed-use investors are also still active.

Managing director Peter Randall said: "We are seeing commercial values get a lot closer to residential prices and that is resulting in some developers being a lot more creative with sites.

"We are seeing more purely commercial or mixed-use investors/purchasers coming forward and there is a greater demand for family housing rather than flats or apartments."

Housing developers are among those hit hardest by the credit squeeze, while the mortgage market has dried up, making it harder to sell properties already built. While this has made life tougher, many still have an eye on the future and are seeking new sites.

Mr Randall said: "We are experiencing a softening in the land and new homes market, like the rest of the country.

"But for the right site in the right place we are still seeing a lot of competition.

"We recently marketed a site in west Kent which attracted 13 bids, and another in mid-Kent that attracted five bids."

With good plots still being competitively bid for, getting professional advice on marketing and selling to a developer was crucial, he said. "It is important to know whether your site has the potential to attract interest and to see if there are alternative uses. Using a professional agent can make sure the right sort of development is devised for a plot, which ultimately should attract the maximum price.

"There are purchasers looking for opportunities and with the time it takes for sites to be sold and then achieve planning, developers are looking at plots now that they can get to work on in 18 months to two years, when the economic situation may have changed greatly."

New deals for Brands

MOTORSPORT: Brands Hatch will continue to host the DTM (pictured) and A1 Grand Prix after agreeing new deals with the high-profile championships this week.

The Kent circuit has hosted both series for the last three years. It will host the UK round of the DTM series for a further three years, while it will again host the A1 finale next May.

Thousands of fans flocked to the Kent circuit for both events this season and witnessed Audi's Timo Scheider take victory in DTM and Team GBR win on home soil in the A1 Grand Prix.

Circuit owner Jonathan Palmer said: "DTM has been the biggest car racing event on our calendar. I am thrilled that A1 Grand Prix will be back for a fourth time."

Lisa in fourth again

ATHLETICS: Lisa Dobriskey finished fourth in her first international meeting after missing out on a medal at the Beijing Olympics.

The Ashford athlete travelled to Rieti in Italy last week to compete in the mile event at the IAAF Grand Prix.

The 24-year-old, who was fresh from her win in the 1500 metres at the Gateshead Grand Prix a week earlier, was edged out of a place in the top three in the sprint finish.

Dobriskey finished behind Ethiopia's Gelete Burja, world champion Maryam Jamal and America's Shannon Rowberry.

Lydden made to wait

MOTORSPORT: Lydden Hill Race Circuit will have to wait another 10 days before they discover if their bid to host the 2009 European Rallycross Championship has been successful.

The one-mile track, between Dover and Canterbury, is up against a bid from Russia to host the event, which is the biggest in rallycross.

A decision by the World Motorsport Council in Paris was originally expected by this weekend, but it has been delayed.

Lydden Hill last hosted the event in 1996.

Twenty20 finals day

CRICKET: Fans can watch the best club sides in the South East for free today as the St Lawrence Ground in Canterbury hosts the Shepherd Neame Twenty20 Club Championship finals.

More than 200 clubs from across the region entered, with four teams battling for a share of the £25,000 prize.

The second semi pits the winners from Essex and Surrey against each other, with Colchester & East Sussex taking on Ashford.

Oar-inspiring bronze

Paralympians battle back to claim medal in Beijing

By DAVID PRITCHARD

ALASTAIR McKean and James Morgan were the pick of Kent's athletes in the Beijing Paralympics as the rowing duo helped Great Britain's mixed coxed fours win bronze.

The pair, from Canterbury and Deal respectively, missed out on automatic qualification for the final after finishing second in their heats at the Shunyi Rowing Lake on Tuesday.

They kept their medal hopes alive by winning the repechage 24 hours later and came home behind the United States and champions Italy on Thursday in the first ever Paralympic rowing regatta.

Jeff Hutton, who knows Morgan and is former president of the Herne Bay Amateur Rowing Club, which McKean is a member of, said: "It's a great achievement. Any medal at the Olympics or Paralympics is something which should be treasured.

"They have worked so hard and there has been a lot of competition for places in the boat, but they persevered and got their reward."

The 27-year-old, from Dartford, who is competing at his fourth Paralympics, finished seventh in the 200m individual medley on Friday before completing his competition with the 100m breaststroke yesterday.

Elsewhere, Herne Bay's Nathan Milgate produced good performances in the 10m air rifle standing and prone events. The 21-year-old made the final of both, finishing seventh in the standing and 12th in the prone.

Another hot prospect who gained valuable experience for London 2012 was 20-year-old Will Bayley. The table tennis ace, who grew up in Tunbridge Wells, was eliminated in the group stage after losing his first two matches, but came back strongly to beat Israel's Shmuel Shur in his last match.

Bexleyheath's Steve Palmer is in action today as the Great Britain wheelchair rugby team play Australia in their final group match attempting to reach the semi-finals.

Ben Quilter, who trains at the Dartford Dojo Centre, lost his bronze medal match in the men's under-60kg judo.

Shakey almost there

A SECOND British Superbike title could be Shane Byrne's this afternoon if he concedes no more than nine points to rival Tom Sykes in round 10 of the championship at Croft.

The Sheppey rider has led the series ever since the first round in April at Thruxton and has a 110-point lead over Suzuki rider Sykes going into today's event. Byrne has dominated the championship this season picking up eight wins and only one retirement.

However, it was seven races ago at Mallory Park when Byrne last tasted victory. Since picking up two third-placed finishes at the last round at Cadwell Park, the 32-year-old has been training vigorously to be in the best shape possible for this afternoon's battle.

Byrne said: "Cadwell Park was a bit of a rude awakening. I know I came away with two third places but I had to work really hard. Since returning home I've been cycling my legs off so I can be as fast as possible at Croft."

The pressure of picking up his second British Superbike title, since his triumph in 2003, is not worrying Byrne and he is hoping he can tie up the series with two rounds remaining.

He said: "I am looking forward to this weekend. Obviously winning the championship at Croft is a possibility, and that would be fantastic. However, I and the rest of the team will be focused on the job in hand – which is to get as good a result as possible.

"Croft has not been particularly kind to me in the past but hopefully my luck might change there this year. I know I can't afford to drop more than 10 points to Sykes, so first up we are going to have to work hard to get to the front and then think about wrapping up the championship after that."

Byrne's future for the 2009 season is still in doubt, but he has emerged as a contender to replace the retiring Troy Bayliss at Ducati's World Superbike team.

PLANS: Artist's impression of new Fleet stadium

Three sites in hat to be Fleet's new home

THREE more sites have become available for Ebbsfleet United's proposed new stadium after discussions with Gravesham Council and Kent County Council.

The Blue Square Premier League club have been based at Stonebridge Road for more than 60 years, but announced their intentions to build a new stadium in June by confirming a site within a three-mile radius of their ground.

It appears the club have been handed three more sites to consider in the Gravesham area.

However, they have not completely ruled out the original identified site and plans for the new ground have not changed according to club chairman John Moules.

He said: "We hope the new stadium will still be partly funded by a residential development as before. After discussions with the council it appears that there are more sites that may be available to us."

The club is doing feasibility work on the three sites. The next meeting discussing the new stadium will be in October.

'We are privileged to play this game'

Kent star says despite the rigours of a busy season, he doesn't want it to end

Inside view

With JOE DENLY

THERE has been a lot of talk about the domestic schedule and how much cricket we have been playing this season, but I for one don't want the season to end.

It is true that we have played a lot of cricket this season, being involved in all four domestic competitions – the County Championship, Pro40, Twenty20 and the Friends Provident Trophy – and we have talked about using the breaks to get away from the game when they do come along.

I do not think we can use having to play so much cricket as an excuse because it is a job we are all privileged to do and a game that we all love. We also have the whole winter off, so I don't think it is acceptable to complain about having to play a lot of games. For me, the more cricket the better.

While I know it's not the same for all the players, I personally got over the disappointment of the Friends Provident Trophy defeat at Lord's as quickly as possible. I spoke to other players who had lost in finals and they said it is best to not dwell on it and that is the approach I have taken.

Our captain, Rob Key, was great after that defeat as he sat us all down and told us that we needed to end the season on a high and show people how good we are.

That really helped pick us up and just two days after the final, we ended up bowling Derbyshire out for 60 in the Pro40 and we have tried to carry on in that vein since then.

Picture: ADY KERRY

BIG HIT: Joe Denly is closing in on 1,000 runs for the season

That defeat has made us more determined to win every game we play, and for me, the focus switches to the County Championship. There is always talk about the excitement of the limited overs games and Twenty20 cricket, but for me, without a doubt, the championship is still the one to win.

Not a lot of players can say they have won the championship and that has long been one of my goals. It is something I would certainly like to achieve in my career.

If that was to happen this season it would cap off an extraordinary effort by the team. We will be giving everything to try and pull it off.

The Twenty20 is a great day out, but for cricketers the championship is something you work towards for the whole season.

It is the ultimate goal for a team and shows that you have some decent players in the squad to be able to mount a challenge throughout the course of the season.

Four-day cricket is the ultimate test and I can tell you that the championship is competitive. For batters it is a real test of technique and I have come up against some excellent bowlers again this season and I have really enjoyed it. Coming up against good bowling attacks gives you a chance to measure how well you are playing.

I have been in pretty good form of late, hitting three half centuries before Saturday's Pro40 finale with Essex, which I put down to the frustration I had at the start to the season. I didn't get off to the best of starts and I feel I have been trying to make up for that. I have just tried to keep things simple when I bat and I hope my good form continues.

Last year I got 1,000 runs and am looking to get up to around that mark again this year. I am not really one for setting myself goals, but I think to score 1,000 runs means I have had a pretty good season.

There were some whispers going around about second season syndrome and I have gone out to try and prove those doubters wrong.

As I approach almost 1,000 runs for the season I hope I have been able to show people that I can play.

This season has certainly given me more confidence about my own game and performing on a regular basis has helped me. I hope that is something I could perhaps take on for England in the future.

It would be good to go on one of the England winter tours. I know the England Lions are going to India and New Zealand this winter so I aim to go on one of those, play some good cricket and try and come back a better player ready to fight on all fronts again next year with Kent.

MOVE: Nicky Southall has joined Dover on loan for a month to get match fit

Southall loaned to Dover, but there's no rift, says Stimson

GILLINGHAM manager Mark Stimson has rubbished speculation that he and Nicky Southall have fallen out after the veteran joined Dover Athletic on loan this week.

The 36-year-old fans' favourite has not completed 90 minutes for the first team this season and was reportedly unhappy when he was made available for loan last month.

This week Southall agreed to drop three divisions for a month, but Stimson insists there is no problem.

He said: "It's far from the truth, there's always rumours and speculation. Nicky has agreed to go out on loan, which is great. A couple of weeks ago he didn't think that was the right option, but now he has thought about it. If he can come back and perform like he did at the end of last season, he will get in our team."

Charlie Howard will also spend a month in non-league football after moving to Dulwich Hamlet, while Sean Clohessy had a trial at Conference side Salisbury City.

The temporary departures open up some room in the wage budget to bring in loan players, with a striker top of Stimson's wish-list.

He said: "Spectators come into the ground to see goals and I'm no different, so if I can bring another striker in it would maybe put a little bit of pressure on our strikers to keep them on their toes."

Former Leicester City hitman Trevor Benjamin is one of several players on trial and the free agent scored for Gills' reserves in midweek to push his claim for a deal.

The £300,000 battle to make Kent United a reality

BILLIONAIRE investors, multi-million pound players and clubs charging the earth to watch their games are making the gap between footballers and the average man on the street ever larger, writes Glenn Pearson.

Supporters' trusts across the country, particularly in the Premiership, are losing the battle to keep their clubs and as a result it is hoped more football fans will go back to following their local team.

A new website has now been launched which will offer non-league football fans an opportunity to invest in a Kent club.

The launch of the site, www.getkentunited.co.uk, will run along the lines of the MyFootballClub.co.uk model which took over Kent side Ebbsfleet at the beginning of the year.

Target

The website aims to reach a target membership of 10,000 who will each invest £30.

The creators of the site, led by 24-year-old Nick Thompson from Folkestone, hope to reach their target within 18 months and will then be in a position to allow their members to choose which Kent club they would like to approach to take over.

No Kent non-league clubs have been approached as yet, but the getkentunited.co.uk concept has promised to pledge £24 of every £30 membership fee to invest in the club annually, which could see a Kent club receive yearly cash boosts of more than £200,000.

Thompson said: "We were obviously inspired by the MyFC concept, but the main reason we decided to start this was because of the Supporters Trust movement.

"We want there to be community ownership of clubs, as fans are being priced out of the terraces and a gap has emerged."

According to Thompson, membership of the website will allow fans to have a voice in the decision making process and day-to-day running of the club.

They will not, however, have the "pick the team" function which was adopted by MyFC.co.uk.

THANKS A LOTTY

England women's cricket skipper caps remarkable year with top sports gong

By GLENN PEARSON

BEING crowned International Women's Cricketer of the Year has topped off a sensational year for Kent and England captain Charlotte Edwards.

The 28-year-old was presented the prestigious award by Indian legend Ravi Shastri at the International Cricket Council's annual ceremony in Dubai on Wednesday.

She became the first England player to win the coveted prize after pipping fellow teammate Claire Taylor to the award, together with New Zealander Nicola Browne and Australia captain Lisa Sthalekar.

Edwards has led her side to 15 straight wins in international cricket this year which includes five series wins against India, South Africa, New Zealand, West Indies and Australia.

During the voting period, Edwards scored 492 runs in 18 One-Day Internationals and took 15 wickets. Also during this time she scored 94 and 14 not out in a Test match against Australia to help England retain the Ashes.

In an exclusive interview with Kent on Sunday, Edwards said she felt the award was recognition for her side's achievement over the course of the year, rather than her own efforts.

She said: "It is obviously a great honour, but I see it as a team award that has topped off an excellent year for us.

"It has not really sunk in yet, but I am sure it will in the next few days.

"When you grow up you want to be the best you possibly can. I am just happy to be contributing to the team, playing well and helping the side win, so I think this award has made it more special."

It has been a remarkable year for the Kent and England skipper who has finally received the recognition she and her team deserve. The right-handed batter believes the award is much more than a commendation for her year's performances.

"The award is good recognition for the women's game and should give everyone a huge boost.

"I think I keep playing it down, but when I think about it, it should be one of the highlights of my career. For me the team comes first because they mean the world to me.

"Lifting the World Cup in Australia next year will definitely surpass it though."

Edwards left the country on Tuesday night after England's final game with India in the one-day series was abandoned due to rain. She then took the seven-hour flight to Dubai and only managed to get to the ceremony five minutes before her award was being read out.

She said: "I was really shocked because it was not one of those award ceremonies where you know who has won beforehand. I knew I had a good chance to win the award, but I was surprised and of course pleased. It was also nice getting the texts and e-mails from friends congratulating me.

"It was unbelievable mixing with top stars such as Ricky Ponting and Jacques Kallis and was an honour to be in that room with them."

While both Michael Vaughan and Paul Collingwood have recently resigned from their posts as captain of the England men's sides due to issues with their own batting form, Edwards appears to revel under the pressure of captaincy.

Her performances with both bat and ball have been sufficiently high to maintain a place in the side by right which has eased the pressure, allowing Edwards to concentrate on leading the team.

She said: "I have a really good management team around me and they help take pressure off me, but it is when I am under pressure that I seem to play well.

"It may also be that I am a bit older and wiser, but having such a fantastic team around me means that I am able to go out and play my own game and trust the team to do their jobs if I don't get any runs."

It is a big year for Edwards and her side as they attempt to win both the World Cup in Australia and the inaugural World Twenty20 in England next summer.

After winning 15 games on the trot, Edwards believes her side are going into the competitions in fine form.

She said: "We are now setting goals to keep that unbeaten run going. None of us want to lose a game to mess up the unbeaten run we have been on.

"When I saw some of the Australians at the awards ceremony they joked that we would be undercooked when they come to play us as we are having some time off during the winter, but that certainly won't be the case."

Edwards plans to take a month off before getting in some practice ahead of England's two-week practice tour of India in November.
